A. H. DIBBERN HAS SHIRT MADE IN 46 MINUTES

Rotarians Guests Yesterday at George Karr's Factory to Learn His Business

Arthur H. Dibbern, exalted ruler of Glendale Elks lodge No. 1289, and a member of the Rotary club, erstwhile jeweler, possesses a new shirt today because—

Well, there is where the story begins. The Rotary club yesterday noon was entertained by George B. Karr of the Baldwin Shirt factory at his plant in the Gateway market building, corner of Brand and San Fernando boulevard.

Mr. Dibbern was the first member of the club to enter the factory and was set upon by the efficient crew of custom shirtmakers as a living example of what they could do in getting the tail long enough, the collar comfortable enough and the sleeves short enough—which was enough to please the recipient of Mr. Karr's hospitality after 46 minutes had elapsed for completing the job.

Five people simultaneously worked on the shirt while the Rotarians watched. Later they retired to Walter Butterly's eating establishment in the market where long tables were spread with viands of various kinds, including chicken fricassee and all the trimmings.

Mr. Karr was called upon to explain himself, for he came to Glendale a year ago, built the building, established the factory and otherwise made himself a good citizen and better Rotarian without asking a bonus for it. And his success has been phenomenal.

The story of Baldwin shirts is a long tale, box pleated and doubly durable and they originally came from Kansas, but Mr. Karr likes Glendale better and here he is. His Parsons factory runs itself and great praise was given the loyal employes who have made his custom shirt business the second largest in America.

Accept Invitation

An invitation was accepted by the Rotary club to have five members present at the Chamber of Commerce forum meeting and President Roy L. Kent grouped the membership under the chairmanships of William A. Tanner, Arthur H. Dibbern, Francis J. W. Henry, A. R. Eastman and James M. Rhoades.

Monrovia's Rotary club will attend Glendale's meeting next week and the week following the Kiwanis club here will be guests. Among visiting Rotarians at the shirt factory feast yesterday were C. W. Newberry of Bakersfield, who waxed humorous over the heat of the day; John Stannard of Alameda and "Bill" Harmuth of Parsons, Kan.

MORE FACTORIES BROUGHT HERE

Power Implement Co. Gets Site on San Fernando Near Colorado St.

Another manufacturing industry is established in Glendale and has started construction of its building on San Fernando Road at the foot of Colorado street.

The concern is the Power Implement & Machinery company, and its presence in Glendale is due to the efforts of the chamber of commerce aided by Roy L. Kent. This concern formerly intended to build near the location of the Harry S. White corporation near Glendale avenue and San Fernando Road, but there were found conditions in the site selected which were particularly adapted to the concern's requirements.

During the past four months, the Glendale chamber of commerce has definitely secured four distinct and important "payroll" industries for the city. These will total more than 500 employes before the close of this year. Already, officials of these companies have moved to Glendale to live.

The International Chemical Products corporation has already started some operations in its new building at Colorado avenue and San Fernando Road, and work has started on the construction of the second unit of the factory.

The Superior Washing Machine company is installing its machinery at the firm's new factory building in the same locality and will be in operation within 30 days.

Mr. Kent is working upon several projects towards bringing into Glendale factories and industries that can be well accommodated here, and while at least two of the establishments he has in hand are of more than ordinary importance in the community, it is not deemed desirable to make public the details at this time, for there is an element of community competition evident in some cases.

AT GLENDALE SANITARIUM

Mrs. E. J. Moore of 136 North Cedar street was operated upon this morning at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

GAS EXPLOSION KILLS CLERK, DESTROYS BLOCK

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 25.—A gas explosion in a drug store at Haskell, Okla., near here, today resulted in the death of Ezra Dickey, 22, and the complete destruction of three store buildings and a hotel. Property loss was estimated at $70,000. It was feared that others would be found dead when the debris was cleaned up. A match cast into a gas main caused the explosion. The rear wall collapsed, burying Dickey beneath the debris. So scarce was the water supply of the city that the fire gained headway and for a time it was feared that the whole business district would be consumed by flames.

$100,000 FIRE DESTROYS 21 CARS AT TRUCKEE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—A report received at the headquarters of the Southern Pacific railway today from Thomas Ahearn, division superintendent, placed damage in an early morning fire at Truckee, Cal., at $100,000. NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Negotiations of the "Willard group" of railway executives representing fifty-two American railroads and the chiefs of the five railroad brotherhoods, for settlement of the railway shopmen's strike, have collapsed, it was officially announced this afternoon. Despite the failure of the negotiations, Bert M. Jewell, leader of the striking shopmen, signified his intention of calling together the committee of ninety general chairmen of the shopcrafts unions to give further consideration to the question of separate agreements with the roads that are willing to settle on that basis. Jewell issued a statement putting the blame for the breakdown of the conferences upon the executives.

SHOW SOME SPEED IN CAR DEALERS' HIGH JINKS

Glendale Association Enjoys Night and Day of Fun at Lake Arrowhead

Forty members of the Glendale Motorcar Dealers' association returned yesterday evening from the first annual high jinks of that organization, held at Lake Arrowhead Wednesday and Thursday, and a smile was on every face.

"Great time," they said. "Let's do it again."

This seemed to be the unanimous sentiment, for they all declared that they had the time of their lives, and are already planning other social events to be held in the near future. The women folks, too, are to be included in the next big dealers' event.

After posing for a picture of the group, the forty dealers left Glendale shortly after 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and motored to the clubhouse at Lake Arrowhead. The place was thrown open to them by the Lake Arrowhead association, and the guests enjoyed themselves each after his own inclinations.

Music Accompanies Them

At a palate-tickling dinner Wednesday evening, "Bill" Bode and his orchestra furnished musi, and officers of the association were called upon for speeches. George T. Smith, new president of the organization spoke of the good effects of high jinks, bringing the dealers together in a friendly and social rather than a competitive way. James H. French, new treasurer, and a member of the board of directors, and M. B. Towman, secretary, were each called on for a few remarks, and the dinner was a joyous affair from beginning to end.

In the evening the guests wandered over the grounds, some went boat riding, and others held talkfests in the cozy clubhouse.

Early Thursday morning an athletic program, including tennis matches and baseball, was staged by some, while others went horseback riding over the mountain trails and others hiked about. At 10 o'clock they were taken on a boat ride around and across the lake, Bill Bode's orchestra occupying one of the boats and making melody on the water. The party stopped at Camp Fleming, on the north side of the lake, before returning to the clubhouse.

Quick Trip Home

Shortly before noon the forty climbed into their cars and began a tour circling the lake. Stopping at Camp Fleming, they had lunch, and after completing the tour, they started for home, arriving in Glendale in time for dinner Thursday evening.

"It was a big time for everyone who went," said Secretary Towman this morning, "and we are all going to work hard to make next year's jinks party as much a success as this one."

However, a whole year is not going to elapse before the dealers meet again. The purpose of the association is to bring the automobile dealers together in a friendly and social spirit, and it is intended that a number of events shall be held during the year, to which the families of the members will be invited. It is probable that a picnic of the dealers and families will be held at the new city park on Verdugo road before long.

Adams Street Won't Be Resurfaced Now, Decision of Council

Adams street between Wilson avenue and Lexington drive is not to be resurfaced at this time, according to the decision reached last night by the city council.

Heed was paid to a verbal protest presented by Rev. R. W. Mottern of 211 North Adams street that the condition of the paving was not so bad as to justify the expenses of repaving. He admitted that the street was somewhat "wrinkled along the edges" and had several unsightly holes in the middle, but said that the entire road could be easily repaired with a few hours' work. He challenged anybody to prove that Adams street between Broadway and Wilson avenue is not a good block. Nobody accepted the challenge.

"I have been over the street recently and I don't see any reason why the street must be repaved unless it is on account of the water main;" remarked Councilman C. E. Kimlin.

Peter Diederich, superintendent of the water department, called attention to two bad breaks in the water main on Adams street recntly.

Councilman A. H. Lapham inquired if the proceedings had been instigated by the property owners or the council.

City Clerk A. J. Van Wie informed him that they had been started by the council.

A definite motion that proceedings should be abandoned altogether was made by Councilman Kimlin who commented upon the number of property owners who are anxious to have streets in various parts of the city resurfaced.

65 Pounds Music Found In Street by Police Patrol

Found: Sixty-five pounds of music!

While patroling the city Lieut. Jee Griffin and Detective Sergeant W. J. Royle flashed the car's spotlight upon a black leather suitcase at the side of the road on South Central avenue.

An investigation revealed the fact that it was crammed with sheet music. Tags on it indicated that it had been shipped via express from P. B. Shores in Kansas City, Mo., to A. D. Bradley, 1250 Fifth avenue, Los Angeles. The value was specified at $225.

The "find" is now being held at the local police station awaiting its owner.

POSTMEN SMILE! PICNIC TOMORROW

Everything Ready for Big Day at New Glendale Park, Say Carriers

Postmen today are delivering mail with smiles on their faces, as they think of the Glendale Letter Carriers' annual picnic, which is to be held tomorrow at the new city park on Verdugo road. The committee in charge of arrangements has announced that all details have been completed, and that a record crowd is expected at the affair.

Tomorrow the "alphabet chasers," as they style themselves, are to forget such things as letters, mail boxes and stamps as they make their first attempt at entertaining the people of Glendale. Music, contests, games, "eats," prizes and dancing are all arranged for, and if anyone fails to get a "kick" out of any of these, the committee promises to arrange some special entertainment for his benefit.

In staging the picnic, the letter carriers express their appreciation of the work of Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson, Assistant Postmaster George Hallett and Superintendent of Mails Frank B. Walker, whose efforts have so improved the working conditions of the carriers that the staging of such a thing as tomorrow's event is made possible. The committee claims that Captain Jackson, "daddy of the alphabet chasers," will be the busiest man in the park tomorrow. City Manager William H. Reeves, and other individuals and organizations also come in for their share of the credit for supporting the picnic.

All tomorrow afternoon and evening service to and from the park will be provided by the Glendale & Montrose railway and automobiles owned by many of the carriers.

Clerks in the postoffice also will get out to the park for at least a part of the festivities. Although some will not be able to get away in the afternoon, it is expected that everyone even remotely connected with the local postoffice will be "among those present" in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Knox Observe Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Knox of 1227 Linden avenue entertained with a party at their home on Wednesday night in celebration of their eleventh wedding anniversary. Pink dahlias predominated in the decorative scheme. After an evening of games refreshments were served, including a wedding cake and cantalcupe a la mode.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Knox and son Dylon and daughter Christine, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Frasher and daughter Mildred, Mrs. C. E. Knox, Mrs. John H. Ireland and Miss Hope Ireland of Glendale; Elgin Pierce and Mrs. Mary Pierce of Eagle Rock and the host and hostess.

Miss Sue Frances At Rountree Home

There was a stork on the telegraph wires between Glendale and points in Alabama last night, as the southern relatives of R. F. Rountree, employe of the Southern Pacific company in Glendale, will have learned ere now—

For at 6:50 o'clock last evening seven and a half pounds of cooing femininity was added to the joys of the Rountree home when infant Sue Frances came into the lives of Mrs. and Mr. Rountree.

Mother and daughter are doing nicely, thank you!

GUARDS FAIL TO RESPOND

Failure to respond for military duty is the cause of five young men of Glendale being invited to appear before Judge F. H. Lowe under instructions from Lieutenant Paul M. Vissman of the national guard. Those to whom the invitation has been extended are Arden Gingery, 134 North Louise street; Alvin Brown, 534 West Doran street; Ronald C. Owens, 310 West Lexington Drive; Earl P. Hammond, 118 South Jackson street, and Gordon Mapes, 350 North Jackson street.

POSTOFFICE SITES ON EAST SIDE DISCUSSED

Classified Branch, Suggestion of Official, Approved by Association

The location of the proposed branch postoffice in the vicinity of Glendale avenue and Broadway was the principal topic of discussion yesterday noon in the Broadway Inn, 637 East Broadway, of the East Glendale Advancement Association.

Anthony Ambrosini of 723 East Broadway and A. B. Heacock of 704 East Windsor road, both of whom were present at the luncheon, have made propositions which were mentioned by C. E. Stanley of 108 North Everett street, chairman of the postoffice committee.

Mr. Heacock asserted that he was willing to erect a one story brick building suitable for postal requirements on the east side of Glendale avenue about 133 feet south of Broadway.

Mr. Ambrosini presented a proposition in writing by which he has agreed to erect a similar building on the west side of Glendale avenue about ninety-three feet from Broadway. It would have a frontage of twenty-five feet and a depth of seventy-nine feet. A fifteen-year lease would call for a monthly rental of $150. The cost of the furniture would be extra. However, light, water and heat would be furnished.

Postmaster Speaks

"I have made up my mind to boost for a classified station on the east side," asserted Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson. He urged that all details be worked out at once in order that he might submit an immediate report to the postoffice department.

"I think we can see that we have a friend at court in Mr. Jackson," remarked C. W. Ingledue, who presided.

Councilman C. E. Kimlin moved that the matter be referred back to the postoffice committee with power to act. Mr. Stanley asserted that he did not wish to assume the responsibility of making a definite recommendation but it was explained that his committee could turn its findings over to the government for a final choice.

"Darkest Before Dawn"

Some pessimism was expressed in regard to the collections for the $25,000 bonus which is to be paid the Glendale & Montrose railway company for establishment of electric service on Glendale avenue. John P. Lambert of 622 East Broadway, chairman of the transportation committee, remarked that it seemed as though the workers have gone to sleep on the job.

Mr. Ingledue replied that this was somewhat of an exaggeration and that the workers had been busy, but that they seemed to have come to "a snag."

"While we are not making any headway, this matter is not lost," remarked Secretary Herman Nelson.

"I want to congratulate this association for what it has accomplished," stated Mr. Heacock.

KELLEY HANDLES BOYS AT Y CAMP

Local Secretary Has Wards of Juvenile Court on Catalina Island

Rex C. Kelley, secretary of the Glendale Y. M. C. A., left today for Catalina Island where he will have charge of the Y. M. C. A. Camp Leon V. Shaw during its occupancy by the Strickland Home for Boys, of Annandale.

The boys of the Strickland home are all wards of the Juvenile Court, and it was through the co-operation of the Glendale District Y. M. C. A. and the County Probation department that it was made possible for the lads to enjoy a vacation on Catalina Island. Mr. Kelley accompanied the group to the camp today.

For a week the boys are to enjoy all the pleasures of the regular Y. M. C. A. camp. A regular Y. M. C. A. camp program is to be adhered to, giving the youths plenty of physical recreation and training, as well as mental and spiritual schooling.

After the Strickland boys leave will be held the Second Annual Hi-Y Training Camp of Southern California, September 1st to 8th. Boys from the Glendale and Burbank High schools, living in Glendale, Eagle Rock and Burbank are to attend the camp which will be of a more advanced nature than the previous Y. M. C. A. camps held this summer.

During the eight days over 100 high school boys from southern California high schools will exchange ideas, discuss problems, and enjoy athletics, games, swimming, campfires and all the things which go to make a successful camping trip.

Mr. Kelley will remain on Catalina Island during the Strickland Home outing, and will be there to take part in the Hi-Y camp when the boys from this and other districts arrive on the afternoon of September 1.

PROTESTS EFFECTIVELY STOP SYCAMORE CANYON ROAD BEING ASSESSED TO LARGE DISTRICT

Council Favors Verdugo Woodlands Property Owners by Abandoning Proceedings for Flood Control Boulevard

STRIDENT and clamorous voices of protest were heard against assessment district for the proposed improvement of Sycamore Canyon road at last night's session of the city council. The protest was effective. The warmth of the evening did not prevent "droves" of taxpayers making their appearance early in the evening—and "thick and fast they came at last and more and more and more."

At the time the council came out of the committee-of-the-whole about 7:45 o'clock the council room was packed with anxious spectators.

"Standing Room Only" was the rule—and not much of that. Every seat was taken, of course, and several perched themselves upon the piano at the rear of the room. Others stood first upon one foot and then the other, wedged in like sardines.

"I presume all of you people are here to protest for some cause or other," remarked Councilman Dwight W. Stephenson, who presided in the absence of Mayor Spencer Robinson. He was right.

Explains Situation

"Before hearing the protests," said the mayor pro tem, "the council wishes to make a statement in its behalf. We feel that a great deal of protest is due to a misunderstanding. It is not the desire of this council and it never has been its desire to 'slip something over' but we do feel that some of you are under a misapprehension.

"The council has under contemplation several major improvements: There is the Patterson avenue improvement in the northwest section of the city; the Los Feliz improvement in the southwest section of the city; the Broadway improvement in the central portion of the city and the Sycamore Canyon improvement in the northeast section of the city.

"It would be manifestly unfair to force the frontage of these major improvements, which are to be a benefit to the whole city, to pay the additional expense for the whole city. So we decided that the way to do would be to charge the frontage with the cost of an ordinary street, the balance to be covered by large assessment districts.

Tried to Be Fair

"We have endeavored—and I don't believe the city engineer has made any error—not to have any of these districts overlap.

"We have had the city engineer prepare estimates as to what

A. J. Dickerson of New Orleans Guest at W. S. Kirk Home

A. J. Dickerson of New Orleans, La., is a summer visitor in Glendale, being the guest of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kirk of 1129 East Colorado street. Mr. Dickerson, has charge of the Tulane University Press in New Orleans, will be a member of the staff at Tulane university in the coming year, his appointment having been the result of years of work and success in the development of the Press.

During Mr. Dickerson's stay in Southern California he has been entertained by relatives and friends in Los Angeles, Glendale and neighboring cities. Mr. and Mrs. Kirk and Mr. Dickerson enjoyed a motor trip yesterday to the beach resorts and in the evening Mrs. Kirk was hostess at a chicken dinner.

Those enjoying the dinner and informal evening of music and conversation were A. J. Dickerson, Mrs. M. W. Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Cash, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Reordan, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kent, Mrs. Ralph Wall, Miss Della Ochner, Miss Clifford Truitt and Mr. and Mrs. Kirk.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Dickerson are from San Bernardino and are visiting for a few days with relatives in Los Angeles and Glendale.

Casa Verdugo Aid Committees Ready

At the request of people residing in Casa Verdugo district, lying adjacent to Glendale city limits at the north end of Brand boulevard and to the west, a committee from the Glendale Chamber of Commerce assisted by a committee from the Realty board is investigating statements that Casa Verdugo may desire annexation to Glendale.

The committee investigating the subject are empowered to offer aid and suggestions to the citizens of the district named if it is found that the latter are desirous of becoming a part of the municipality, as some have intimated.

$300 FINE FOR SPEED

A $300 fine and the privilege of spending 90 days in the county jail was given to Volney A. Enoch of 1513-A South San Fernando Road by Judge F. H. Lowe. He was charged with speeding south on Glendale avenue in his red Marion touring car about 45 miles an hour. He is asserted to have been intoxicated. A bottle of moonshine liquor was seized as evidence.

CAST IS CHOSEN FOR COMMUNITY PRODUCTIONS

Three Offerings by Eagle Rock Children Promise Fine Presentation

The cast for the "Junior Gala Night," the production of the Eagle Rock Community Players which is to be staged at the Eagle Rock Central school auditorium next Monday evening, has been definitely chosen from the number of children who were tried out for the parts.

The first of the three plays which will form the evening's program is a pantomime, "A Japanese Wedding," and is said to be an exact reproduction of the manner in which the wedding ceremony is held in Japan.

The cast for the "Japanese Wedding," all Eagle Rock young people, is as follows: Bride, Ada Townsend; groom, Dorothy Jamieson; go-between, Marion Lerchen; groom's father, Ethel Hikes; groom's mother, Marion Lippold; bride's father, Mercedes Bostler; bride's mother, Laverne Harrell; bridesmaids, Lillian Gregory, Olga Griffin, Ethel Holland, Gladys Boyd, Dorothy Hikes, Melba Narcott, Lillian Harrell, Gloria Harrison, Betty Bostler, Eloise Stanton, Lenore Rutledge, Virginia Wolf, and Charles Davis.

Before the opening curtain of the "Japanese Wedding," Gladys Boyd, one of the bridesmaids, is to do a special dance.

"The Forest Spring," a fairy play, is to be the second number on the program. The cast for this is composed of only four young girls: Amata, Loita Bannister; Giovanni, Virginia Wolf; Fiamma, Helen Maynard; Spirit of the Forest, Dorothy Wolf.

A comedy will close the evening's entertainment. It is a cutting from "Midsummer Night's Dream," and the part of the famous Shakespeare play is said to make an excellent comedy. It is called "The Mechanics' Play." The cast consists of: Nick Bottom (Pyramus), Joseph L. Fischer; Quince (Prologue), Harwin Mann; Snug (Lion), Douglas Depew; Snout (Wall), Howard Mann; Starveling (Moonshine), Robert Squire; Flute (Thisby), Nelson Deacon.

The young people are rehearsing their performances three times a week, and are doing individual rehearsals daily.

"Speckboom" is an African plant with large, succulent leaves which has been transplanted with success to the waste lands of California to provide pastures for cattle and sheep.

UPWARD TREND IN LATIN AMERICA REPORTED

Commerce Department Says Readjustment Period Is Coming to Close

By U. S. Press Association

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Latin American trade is clearly on the upward trend despite the sharp decline in the flow of commerce between this country and the southern republics during the past fiscal year, according to a survey of the situation made by Dr. Julius Klein, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, of the commerce department.

Readjustment from abnormal conditions he found to be mainly responsible for the reduction of Latin American imports into the United States from $1,131,000,000 in 1921 to $661,000,000 in 1922, and the decline in exports to South America from $1,303,000,000 in 1921 to $498,000,000 in 1922. There has been, he declared, some unjustified alarm over the marked decline as shown by the recent figures, but the causes of this reduction are in no sense ominous.

Period of Readjustment

"The twelve months in question," Dr. Klein said, "simply represent a period of readjustment from a year of abnormal and in many ways, unhealthy trade inflation down to the proportions justified by the normal economic relations among the American republics. The beginning of 1921 found on hand in the United States large stocks of most of the raw materials coming from Latin America, and during the period of readjustment the consumption of these stocks and the demand for new ones was slow. Like conditions prevailed in Latin America with respect to our goods.

"The beginning of the year found the merchants of that region overstocked with imported goods, much of which had been ordered in 1919, but not delivered until 1920, helping to swell the trade figures of that year."

One Remarkable Gain

There are, however, many signs which promise an early improvement in the situation. The Argentine grain and hides exports have shown a remarkable gain from January to July, 1922, as compared with the same period in 1921. The Brazilian government recently inaugurated the valorization of coffee purchasing from the planters at prices which enabled them to meet part of their obligations, so that prices are now bringing a profit to plantation owners.

In the summer of 1921 the foreign consumers of Chile's great export commodity, nitrate, held sufficient stocks to meet their needs for a year. But this situation has changed and Chilean trade is now showing a steady improvement of nitrate since 1920.

JILTED 'WORKING GIRL' SUES MILLIONAIRE FOR $50,000 BALM

Her Action Is Taken to Solve Problem of 'Caste,' Says Pretty Girl

By JACK CARBERRY
For International News Service.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 25—"Can the girl who works for a living ever reach the heights of social leadership as a rich man's wife?

"Or does her association with the hard, practical world of business unfit her for the softness of the country club veranda, the bridge tea of the exclusive set and as hostess to the 'four hundred'?"

A jury in circuit court here will be asked to solve this age-old problem—to write into the books of Blackstone, in their cob-Mwebbed shelves, the answer to the problem of 'caste.'

Sues Millionaire Suitor

Miss Landis Grout, twenty-five year-old stenographer, pretty, vivacious, diminutive, brunette—the "Angel Eyes" of Jonathan A. Brubaker, sixty-three-year-old millionaire grain man, church director and clubman—asks the question.

It is in the form of a heart-balm suit filed by Miss Grout, in which she demands $50,000 to soothe the aches of blighted romance.

Miss Grout's suit has become the one topic of the country club, the afternoon bridge and is brought up at every social function for discussion, not alone by feminine society, but by the social set's male contingent as well.

Was Working Girl

In her petition Miss Grout says: She was a working girl—a stenographer.

In a fellow business man's office the millionaire grain man chanced to see her one day—

"He told me it was my eyes which attracted him—that is why he always called me his "Angel Eyes,'" Miss Grout says—

That the millionaire pursued her every step from the moment of their meeting until a few hours before the time set for their wedding on May 31, is another allegation of the suit.

"Miss Grout listened to his plea to resign her position," her suit continues.

Gave Her $4000 Ring

She further says:

"The millionaire purchased a $4000 engagement ring.

"Bought her a $4000 coupe.

"Purchased the wedding ring, inscribing it: 'To my Angel Eyes—always.'

"That he purchased her wedding gown.

"Employed the minister—arranged for the service in the exclusive Grand Avenue Temple Church, of which the millionaire is a member of the board of trustees—

"And that he left her waiting at the church."

In her suit Miss Grout says:

"I was all prepared for my

wedding—dressed in the things so dear to a girl's heart. But my groom-to-be did not call for me. I telephoned him. I was frantic. He told me I would have to postpone the wedding. I asked why.

Says He Repudiated Her

"He said that 'I was just a working girl'—that his set could not accept me until I had elevated my caste.

"It is not that the $50,000 I ask will mend my broken heart," Miss Grout said after filing her suit. "My real reason is to avenge the slur of so called society against the girl who works.

"I am proud of the bit I contributed to the work-a-day world. I glory in the girl who works—no matter what her position in life. I believe her more fitted to be a wife than the social drone of the pink teas, whose only labor is the hours she spends under the hand of the beauty specialist.

Claimed She Was Beautiful

"If I have beauty, which Mr. Brubaker claimed, it is just the beauty of the girl who has lived a healthy, happy life—a mirror of the happiness a girl finds in the knowledge that she is contributing something to the world."

Miss Grout claims it will be balm enough for her heart if a jury holds that the working girl is not of lower social caste than her more fortunate sister—the daughter of wealth.

Brubaker has promised to file answer to Miss Grout's suit.

He will prove, he claims, "that the 'working girl' vamped him" into his proposal of marriage—that she aspired to be an "old man's darling" and in reality "loved a handsomer and younger man."

Brubaker, despite Miss Grout's denial, says he will name the man.

Election Concerts Attract Youngsters

Eagle Rock residents who happened to be in the vicinity of Central avenue and Colorado boulevard late yesterday afternoon were entertained with what might be styled a modern southern concert.

A big car containing three negro musicians and bearing an election campaign banner, drove up and parked in front of Kokomo Inn on South Central avenue. While they tuned up their instruments a good-sized crowd gathered.

With a saxophone, banjo and mandolin-banjo, the three played a number of popular songs, singing the choruses as they played. After a campaign speech had been made, the negroes played another song before they left.

"This election-time serenading seems to be a regular circus for the kids," remarked one of the bystanders, pointing to the crowd of small boys assembled around the automobile listening to the concert.

Eagle Rock Now Has New Copper

The latest addition to the Eagle Rock police force is J. Roy McClay, assistant to B. B. Martsolf, Eagle Rock city clerk. Mr. McClay was sworn in by Mr. Martsolf yesterday morning, and presented with a shiny badge stating "Eagle Rock Police, No. 2."

Mr. McClay came to Eagle Rock several months ago from Oklahoma with Mrs. McClay and their two sons and daughter. Since he assumed the position of assistant to Mr. Martsolf, he has been called out many times, acting as a deputy marshal.

Yesterday morning he decided that since he does considerable police work as a deputy marshal, he might as well be sworn in as a regular member of the force.

A TRUE RAT STORY

Auburntown, Tenn., 6-22-22.
Stearns Electric Paste Co., Chicago.

Dear Sirs: Mr. Robert T. Donnell of Auburntown, Tenn., came in our store the other day and wanted something to kill rats, so I sold him a box Stearns Rat Paste. And he put some paste on six biscuits that night and the next morning he found fifty-four big rats. And the second night he put out four more biscuits with paste on them, and the second morning he found seventeen more rats, making a total of seventy-something to two nights, and there were lots more that he did not find.

This is some big rat tale, but, nevertheless, it is so. Just thought would write to let you know that your rat paste is good.

Respectfully, KENNEDY BROTHERS.

Building Program Continues Apace . Records Indicate

Building permits issued at the Eagle Rock city hall yesterday seemed to bear out the predictions made recently by several local contractors and building supply men that construction work will soon be on the increase. Five of the permits were issued, with a total valuation of $13,940.

A five-room residence is to be built at 237 South Satsuma for Hugo Osborn, of that address. W. R. Denman is to be the builder of the structure, the cost of which is estimated at $2500. Work will start at once.

At 232 East Ridgeway Drive, the Los Angeles Securities company will erect a five-room house and a garage at a cost of about $6000. The Securities company is given as the owner. It is stated that the buildings are to be erected as an investment, and the property is to be sold to a prospective Eagle Rock resident upon its completion.

C. C. Rittenhouse, Jr., will build a five-room residence at 311 North Ellis avenue. The owner is H. D. Coley of 1059 North Western avenue, Los Angeles. The approximate cost is given as $3400.

A two-room frame store building is to be erected at 702 West Colorado for Joseph F. Fuymaka of 314 West Cerritos avenue, Glendale. B. W. Sherwood is to be the contractor. The cost will be $1900. The building will be used as a grocery store and meat market.

A. F. Jackson of 134 West Eagle avenue will build a store room on the rear of the lot at a cost of about $140.

Moore Band Wagon Rouses Veterans' Ire In Parade at L. A.

A near-riot was caused during the Spanish War Veterans' auto parade in Los Angeles yesterday when a truck bearing large "Vote for Moore" banners and carrying what was formerly known as a German band, "horned into" the procession, at Fifth street and Broadway, giving the impression that the parade was a Moore boosting event. Two policemen were required to force the driver of the truck to get out of line.

Commander P. F. Roller of Roosevelt camp, U. S. W. V., of Los Angeles, ordered the political propaganda out of the parade. Other ex-service men backed his request enthusiastically. The truck driver became abusive, and the old campaigners were crowding about in a threatening manner when some of them brought the police and had the Moore propaganda separated from their procession.

Following the parade, veterans interviewed expressed indignation that any political band-wagon should obtrude itself into their strictly non-political affairs in an evident effort to make the public believe that the veterans are for Moore—which their anger at the occurrence does not indicate.

Improvement Work On Streets Moves Along With Speed

Improvement of the paving on South Sierra Vista Drive is now well along under the direction of Claude S. Bramble, Eagle Rock street superintendent.

The thoroughfare was plowed up Wednesday by the street department, the old material is now being worked over for a base. It will be graded and rolled down firm. A surface coat of rock and oil will then be added and the street rolled and opened for traffic.

Mr. Bramble estimates that the work will take about one week and that it will be completed by next Wednesday.

Booster Hovers Between Love and Duty on Vacation

Even when on a vacation, G. E. Brown, local builder, with J. B. Brown & Co., 117 South Central avenue, can't stay away from Eagle Rock for any length of time.

Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Brown with their three sons left for an outing at Santa Monica. However, even while he is supposed to be enjoying his siestas on the sand he seems to be usually either in Eagle Rock or on the way between here and the beach. Business which cannot wait is his plea.

The Browns will be at the beach a few days more and will return the latter part of next week.

Museum Fee Fails to Halt Sightseers

PARIS. — Why and wherefore of the fee newly charged this month for entrance into French museums and historical monuments is made apparent by the announcement of the amounts collected the first day of the new charge. The Louvre took in $250, the Cluny museum, $13, and the Luxembourg Gallery, $26. The Louvre, as a stamping ground of the American tourist, was unaffected in number of visitors by the imposition of the fee.

NOLLS ON CATALINA ISLE

Friends of Mrs. Page Noll of 215 Rowland avenue, Eagle Rock, received word that she and her son, Page, Junior, are immensely enjoying their vacation on Catalina Island.

Mrs. Noll and Page, Junior, left about a week ago for the popular resort. They will return to Eagle Rock in about two weeks.

Col. J. D. Fraser and F. E. Dicksons Attend War Vets' Banquet

Spanish war veterans assembled in Los Angeles at their annual encampment last night held their formal convention banquet at the Ambassador hotel.

Glendale was represented by Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of police, and Frank E. Dickson, city purchasing agent. Mrs. Dickson of 216 East Wilson avenue, who has been attending the entire convention, accompanied her husband.

Although the menu mentioned a lot of Cuban and Philippine names in honor of the occasion, the meal really consisted of fried chicken and "fixins," according to Mr. Dickson, who said that the titles of the dishes were the hardest things to digest.

Colonel Fraser enjoyed the banquet but admitted that the Broadway Inn, 637 East Broadway, serves a meal which is much more to his fancy.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS DANCE

The heat last night did not interfere with the success of the Knights of Pythias social in their club rooms at Park avenue and Brand boulevard. After playing cards, the evening was spent in dancing. The floor was occupied by about 75 couples. They seemed to enjoy the melody furnished by the Shrine club orchestra and insisted upon dancing until midnight.

WHERE WILL COW PARK

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—Where to park Fleurette, blue blooded cow of Guernsey ancestry, from the famous Edgmoor herd, who will furnish warm milk for Monsieur Helie de Talleyrand, first duke of Talleyrand and thirteenth Count De Grignola, who will arrive here Sunday from Seattle with his wife, the former Miss Anna Gould, was giving little worry to the management of the St. Francis, exclusive hostelry today, as preparations were rushed for the reception of the duke and duchess.

TO OPEN MINES

SEATTLE, Aug. 25.—Members of the Washington coal operator's' association in joint conference with officers of the United Mine Workers have agreed to the re-opening of the mines in this state on the terms laid down in the recent Cleveland settlement.

INVESTIGATE FIRE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—Police today were investigating an alleged incendiary attempt to burn a three-story boarding house at 1428 Post street early today. When firemen arrived they found that the entire upper stories and attic had been literally soaked with kerosene and the windows opened and holes bored in the floors to create draught.

POLICE TRAP READY

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25. — Police today awaited the snapping of a "telephone" trap for the slayer of Fred Oesterreich, Milwaukee manufacturer, who was murdered in his pretentious Andrews boulevard home Tuesday night, apparently by burglars. The trap was set by the police following a telephone call to the Oesterrich home by a strange man who refused to reveal his name, but asked a personal friend of the slain man's wife if a reward would be offered for the slayer or slayers. Additional mystery was given the case today when it was learned that a short time ago Oesterreich made a flying "business" trip to Milwaukee, and that while there he did not communicate with his relatives or close friends.

RATHER CHEAP CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Aug .25.—Charged with having attempted to obtain $250 "hush money" from his former wife's present husband, J. Adrian Vorburg, was in jail today following his arrest in a Venice hotel. According to the police Vorburg had recently returned from South Africa after being absent from his wife, Mrs. Martha Kelly Vorburg of Venice, for three years. In that time, it was said, the wife became Mrs. George Wilkinson. It was payment for "keeping quiet" concerning the wife's alleged failure to obtain an annulment of her marriage to her first husband that Vorburg was said to have demanded from Wilkins.

Aged Indian Last Of Wyandot Tribe

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ki-Hue, known as "Indian Billy" Moose, the sole survivor of the once powerful Wyandot Indians of which he was a sub-chief, is now living a few miles north of Columbus, spending his last days near the ancient council grounds of the allied Ohio tribes.

Proud of his race and scoring his few remaining kinsmen, who, with advancing civilization, became intermarried with other tribes and with the "palefaces" who conquered them, Ki-Hue is the last full-blooded Wyandot Indian in the world.

He was born ninety-five years ago, eight miles from Upper Sandusky, Ohio, in the heart of the territory which had been the original home of his ancestors, and spent his boyhood within a short distance of the point where Colonel Crawford was burned at the stake by Delaware Indians after horrible tortures. At that time the Delawares and Wyandots were allied tribes.

In 1832 the government, noting the decline of the Wyandot tribe, moved it as a whole to a reservation where Kansas City, Kan., now stands. Bill, together with other young braves of the tribe, was sent to the government school at Philadelphia, where they were taught the ways of the white man.

He still is responsible to federal authorities and makes a quarterly report to them of his whereabouts. When he dies, the proper officials will take his body to his ancestral home and bury him among his family with all the pompous ceremonies which so mark the funeral rites of the American Indian.

Leather Lits, last of the big chiefs of the Wyandots, has long ago passed to the happy hunting grounds. Pancake, who, besides Billy, was the last of the lesser chiefs, had joined him. One by one the braves of the tribe have followed, leaving the straight, wiry old Ki-Hue outwardly cheerful, yet sorrowing that all the glories of his ancestors have faded, and that little by little the once gigantic tribe has dwindled away.

When the Indian first came into his tribe it aggregated more than 300 members, of which few were full blooded Wyandots. After his common and trade school education, Billy worked in various capacities and traveled extensively, principally as a horseback rider with numerous circusses and for a time was connected with a contracting company and helped install the street cable systems in Pittsburg and Johnstown.

Dangerous to Hail Motorists at Night

About 1:45 in the morning is a poor time for stranded pedestrians to be looking for taxi-cab service on San Fernando road, according to Albert Roth of 2231 North Broadway, who was hailed this morning while driving a truck for the Los Angeles Creamery company.

Ordered to stop by an unknown man, who posed in the middle of the road with threatening gestures, Mr. Roth put his foot on the gas and sped ahead. He thought his truck hit the man and knocked him down, but could not be positive.

Officers G. M. Booth and Thomas M. McGuire were sent out from police headquarters to investigate the episode. They could find no trace of the man who was supposed to have been the victim of the truck.

Delay Paving Brand Contractor's Request

Paving of Brand boulevard between Colorado street and Windsor Road may be delayed another six weeks.

George R. Curtis of Los Angeles who was given the contract for this work, last night appeared before the city council and asked for a forty-day extension of time.

After some deliberation, the council agreed to grant his request provided he gets busy in the next thirty days and shows a disposition to make an attempt to fulfill his contract.

The new time limit on the work is now 70 days off or about the first of November.

Judge Wilbur Calls On Glendale Friends

Judge Curtis D. Wilbur of Los Angeles, who is seeking the nomination to the position of Chief Justice of the Supreme court, was a visitor in Glendale this morning. He is opposed by William P. Lawlor, a northern California candidate.

Judge Wilbur stands on his record, but friends believe he is preeminently fitted for the position because of his younger years — and not so young at that—and the fact that some time may pass before the post needs be filled.

It is not a partisan question, simply a matter of efficient administration of higher justice and any lawyer will tell you what Judge Wilbur has done.

Judge Frank H. Kerrigan, candidate for associate justice of the supreme court, also was a caller at this office recently and presented good arguments for his election.

A horse ran away on Broadway, New York. It saw another horse.

Claims Must Be Made for U. S. Tax Refund

Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell was yesterday instructed by the treasury department to correct statements sent out from Washington that it would not be necessary for estates to file claims for refund to which they were entitled under the supreme court decision in the case of the Union Trust company of San Francisco vs. Collector of Internal Revenue Wardell.

"The existing regulations provide for the refunding of estate taxes only upon the filing of a claim therefor by the taxpayer, said Collector Goodcell. "It will therefore be necessary for all taxpayers who are entitled to a refund of estate taxes by reason of the Union Trust company vs. Wardell decision to make formal claim therefor on Form 843, which should be filed with the collector of the district wherein the tax was paid for transmittal to the treasury department for appropriate action.

FASHION'S FANCY PASSES REVIEW AT T. D. & L.

Glendale Merchants Display Fall Styles on Eleven Beautiful Models

By VIRGINIA KAY

Dame Fashion smiled a happy smile of approval yesterday afternoon and evening, when Peggy Hamilton and her eleven charming living models presented at the T. D. & L. theatre the fashions, fads and fancies of 1922. And well might even the exacting goddess of fashion approve for none of milady's modern wardrobe niceties were omitted, from practical, well-fitting corsets and artistically dainty lingerie to the many delightful sport togs, chic coats, hats and dresses.

It was a most colorful and finished fashion revue and Managers McGillis and Miles, Miss Hamilton and her assistants, Glendale merchants and Ralph Allan, manager of the theatre, all shared in the perfect programs and splendid success. The displays were given in connection with the regular film program, the feature being Jack London's "Dangerous Lies," a Paramount production with an all-star cast.

Ah, Vanity!

"Ah, Vanity thy name is woman!" was never truer than in the Twentieth Century and well may the modern woman accept the accusation gracefully for never did Dame Fashion provide her with more delightful things in which to be so beautifully vain. Whether milady be the dark Carmen type or a demure Colonial maid, or any charming type of femininity between the two, she will be in her element in the autumn wardrobe as shown yesterday afternoon and evening.

It was a slow fade-out for the men and an artistic close-up of the more intimate garments of Everywoman's wardrobe at the special matinee for women, presided over by Peggy Hamilton, fashion connoisseur, whose charm never fails to win her audiences. There are no duplicates of Peggy Hamilton's beautiful smiling eyes, her winning smile, charming personality and delightful "at-homeness" behind the footlights and when she made her bow to Glendale women yesterday in a boudoir outfit of Georgette crepe, laces and ribbons, she was heartily and happily greeted.

And no one but Peggy could select eleven as charming models, each a different type making the fashions, fads and fancies of 1922 real temptations for Everywoman, be she light or dark, stout or thin.

Of course, lingerie was the feature of the afternoon tete-a-tete, the many dainty garments combining into an entrancing picture of feminine loveliess, done in soft pastel shades, framed in filmy laces and hung by cunning ribbons.

Stout Woman Stars

The real star of the afternoon was the stout woman, who was corseted by Glendale corsetieres, Mrs. Anderson of the La Facile shop, Mrs. Sherrod of the Sherrod's Specialty shop, and Mrs. Hatz of the Hatz's shop. The three styles of corsets were heartily applauded, but Mrs. Hatz undoubtedly carried off the honors, because, in addition to fitting successfully a practical, elastic-vested garment, she gowned her model completely in a long-lined poiret twill dress, small velvet hat and Panvelene coat.

Particularly delightful were the dance numbers given by little Lillian Guenther and the songs by Patricia Pfeiffer and Odell Cunningham.

The world of fall and winter fashions is a harmonious mingling of the artistic and the practical. Such is the unanimous opinion of Glendalians who attended the revue in the evening, when Miss Hamilton and her "garden of girls" and boys, too, appeared in good-looking things from the following Glendale stores. Hatz's gown and coat shop, Josephine Des Mazes Hat Shop, Sherrod's Specialty Shop, Robinsons Men's Shop, the Glendale Dry Goods company and Harriett Wilson's Hat Shop.

In connection with the revue there were a vocal solo by Vivian Ingraham, a toe dance by Patricia Pfeiffer, a vocal solo by Odell Cunningham, special whistling, a clever boy and girl dancing act, and musical accompaniments and special numbers by the theatre-organist.

Some Temptations

Everything from sport togs to hats and dinner dresses were real temptations and as the models promenaded across the stage and down the aisles the audience forcibly voiced approval by long applause.

The selection of a dress for informal dinner or afternoon wear was shown to present an outlook of pleasant anticipation. The "Peggy Paige" models from the Hatz Shop predominated and such alluring new fabrics as Serpolette, Crepe Tanagra and the new heavy silk crepe were shown.

Serpolette is a combination of linen and silk and is unusually adapted for draping as was seen in the golden tan and elephant's breath gowns shown.

The smartest of the smart are the three-piece combination poiret twill and French flannel suits shown and worn cleverly with the cunning small, close fitting hats, so popular for the fall.

Others Worthy of Mention

Mention should also be made of the black lace dinner gown, whose popularity is to be renewed for the fall and winter. One shown was a lovely combination of black Canton and Georgette crepe with graceful draped sleeves of black Georgette with sapphire spangles.

Another happy thought in the way of an afternoon gown was of sand color Canton crepe with narrow velvet ribbon trimmings. An equally clever dress was a heavy black Canton crepe with unusual sleeves brilliant with a green, yellow and apricot yarn design.

Particularly suggestive of autumn was a henna Canton crepe with sleeves draped from the shoulders to the hem, with a girdle of velvet flowers and leaves in autumn colorings.

Finally there was a heavy satin faced black Canton crepe combined with black Spanish lace.

Autumn Coats Pleasing

That the autumn coats are pleasing both in fabric and trimmings was voiced in the applause received by the models presenting the coat collection.

The new Panvelene cloth is indeed delightful for the winter coat. One shown last night was a black Panvelene, lined with grey Canton crepe and trimmed with real Caracul. Another was of brown Arabella cloth, also lined with Canton crepe, but trimmed with real beaver fur.

Still another was a black Panvelene with platinum fox collar.

Special mention should be made of a lovely black Panvelene with grey squirrel collar.

Styles both daring and demure, to suit the gown and the wearer, may be said of the hats displayed with the various gowns, suits and coats.

Small, close-fitting ones of black velvet, often combined with the silver metallic cloth, were the finishing touches to the costumes. In truth one's hat fancy may be indulged in this season, for the types vary from the wide brim hat to the small saucy styles.

It was a most intriguing collection of styles, announcing to the Glendale women that summer is gone and that the consideration of her fall and winter wardrobe is of serious moment.

Adding greatly to the revue was the effective stage setting arranged through the courtesy of the Glendale Music company, the Trice Furniture company, the Glendale Florist and Downing and Cox.

Managers McGillis and Miles were also assisted in carrying out the noonday parade by the loan of cars from the Packer Auto company.

Burbank Resident Is In Bad With Judge

BURBANK, Aug. 25. — Joseph W. Fawkes of this city, candidate for supervisor in Los Angeles county, is under $1000 bail to appear before Judge Decker of San Fernando on a charge of disorderly conduct and an older charge of driving his automobile without tail light and without operator's license.

Fawkes was taken into custody last Monday. His appearance before the court resulted in a charge of contempt by the judge, and while the victim of these series of charges was "enjoying the liberty of the jail," his friend C. Craft who visited the judge to learn about the difficulty, was also incarcerated to share that freedom.

Hungry Russians Eat Own Children

LOS ANGELES—Reports that starving Russians have been eating their own children are not exaggerated, according to Captain F. Dunnet, of the steamer Orient, which has arrived in Los Angeles after completing a voyage to the Russian provinces on the Black Sea with wheat for the Russian relief.

According to Captain Dunnet, who saw service as a British officer during the war, there seems to be little hope for the Russian peasant being other than hungry and starving under the present regime. From what he learned while ashore, the captain said the workers would not produce anything because it would be taken from them by government emissaries.

The producers have nothing left for their efforts and have grown hopeless and despondent, the captain said. Having nothing else to eat, he said, they are eating their own children under the most appalling conditions of starvation that could be imagined.

The greatest hope of many of the people, the officer said, was for them to get out of the country. But government officers are very watchful, and it is very difficult for them to leave, he said.

The blue whale is the largest creature alive today.

The RIDDLE of the FROZEN FLAME

by M.E. & T.W. HANSHEW

Copyright, 1920 by Doubleday, Page & Company.

He swung upon his heel and linked his arm with Mr. Narkom's then, taking his cap from a peg on the hall stand, clapped it on his head and went down and out to the task that awaited him, and a discovery which was, to say the least of it, startling in the extreme.

They walked for some time in comparative silence, puffing at their cigarettes. Then of a sudden, Cleek spoke.

"I say, old man, you'll want to keep a close lookout upon your own personal safety," he said, abruptly, wheeling round and meeting his friend full in the eyes.

"What d'you mean, C——— Headland?"

"What I say. Someone's got wind of our real purpose here. I have a grave suspicion that that Borkins was listening at my door last evening when I was talking to Dollops. Later—well, somebody or other tried to get me in bed. But I was one too many for him—"

"My dear Cleek!"

"Mr. Lake, I beg of you—not so loud!" ejaculated Cleek. "There are ears everywhere, which you as a policeman ought to know. Do you remember my name and don't go losing any sleep over me. I can take care of myself, all right. But I had to do it pretty energetically last night. A thoughtful visitor stabbed the pillow I'd placed in bed instead of my humble self, and cut an incision three inches deep. Hit the mattress, too!"

"Headland, my God!"

"Now, don't take on so. I tell you I can take care of myself, but you do the same. No one in the house knows a word about it, and I don't intend that they shall. The less said the better, in a case like this. Only those Frozen Flames are trying to eat up something that is either very serious or very money-making. One thing or the other. . . . Hello, here we are! Mornin' Petrie; mornin' Hammond. All ready for the search I see."

The two constables, clad in plain clothes and accompanied by Dollops, were holding in their hands long pitchforks which looked more as if they were ready for haymaking than for the gruesome task ahead of them all. Petrie carried upon his arm a roll of rope. They swung into step behind the detectives, across the uneven, marshy ground.

It was a chilly morning, and inclined to rain. Across the flat horizon the mist hung in wraith-like forms of cloudy gray, and the deep grass into which they plunged their feet was beaded with dew. For a time they walked on quietly until they had gone perhaps a quarter of a mile. Then Cleek halted.

"Better separate here," he said, waving his arm out across the sweep of flat country. "Dollops, you take the right with Petrie. Hammond, you'd better try the left. Mr. Narkom and I will go straight ahead together. Any discovery made, just give the usual signal."

They separated at once, their feet upon the thick marshy ground leaving numberless footprints in the moist rank grass, which crushed under them like wet hay. Their heads were bent, their eyes fixed upon the ground, their faces bearing a look of utter concentration. Cleek watched them moving slowly across the wide, flat reaches of the Fens, stopping now and then to poke among the rank marshgrass, and prod into the earth, and then turned to Mr. Narkom.

"Good fellows—those three," he said, with a smile. "What more can you ask than that? Straight ahead for us, Mr. Narkom. Sir Nigel tells me the patch of charred grass lies in a direct line with the edge of the Fens where we started our search. I'm keen to have a look at it."

Mr. Narkom nodded, and then walked on, poking here and there with his stout walking stick. Cleek did likewise. They rarely spoke, simply pushed and poked and trod the grass down; searching, searching, searching, as had those other men upon the night of Dacre Wynne's disappearance. But they had searched in vain for any clue which would lead to the elucidation of the mystery.

Suddenly Cleek stopped. He pointed a little ahead of him with his walking stick.

"There you are!" said he briskly. "The patch of charred grass." He strode up to it, stopped and bent his eyes upon it, then suddenly exclaimed:

"Look here!" Below at the roots the fresh grass is springing up in little tender green shoots. That patch'll disappear shortly. And—" he stopped and sucked in his breath, wheeling round upon Mr. Narkom—"when you come to think of it, why shouldn't it have grown up already? There's been time enough since the man Wynne's disappearance to cover up all those singed ends in a new growth. Can't be that it's done on purpose, and yet—why is it still here?"

"Perhaps some sign or something," suggested Mr. Narkom.

"Possibly, something of the sort. And if we have signs then there must be something human behind all this talk of supernatural agents," returned Cleek. "Let us take it that this patch of charred grass hides something, or marks the way to something, buried underneath it, or lying near by. Eh—what's that?" and Petrie had gone.

"They've found something!" cried out Mr. Narkom, in a hoarse whisper of excitement.

"Obviously. Well, this other thing will wait. We'll go after them."

The two of them hastened off in the direction of the repeated cat-call and soon came upon Dollops

"That" was a cat-call ringing out across the misty silences from the direction in which Dollops bending over something, his eyes rather scared, just as Hammond arrived from the other direction in answer to the summons. Petrie too, appeared rather nervous. As Cleek came up to them, his eyes fell upon the ground, and he stopped stock still.

"Gad! . . . Where did you find it?"

"Here, sir; half buried, but with the 'ead astickin' out!" returned ePtrie. "Dollops and I pulled it out and—and 'ere it is."

Cleek glanced down at the body of a heavily built man, clad in evening clothes, and already in an advanced state of decomposition. "Looks like it was that chap Wynne," he said, in a matter-of-fact tone. "Answers the description all right. The other man was short and red-headed. And the evening clothes are well cut from what I can see. Must have been a handsome chap—once. . . . Well, we'll have to get this very gruesome find back to the Towers as quickly as possible. Got your oilskin with you, Petrie?"

"Yessir!" Petrie miraculously produced the roll from under his tunic and spread the sheet out. Then they lifted up the body and wrapped it about so that the covering hid the awfulness of it from view. Mr. Narkom mopped his forehead with his handkerchief.

"Cinnamon, Cleek!" he ejaculated, breathlessly. "Pretty awful, isn't it? Was it much hidden, Petrie? Funny the other people didn't find it when they made their search!"

"No, sir—plain as a pikestaff!" returned Petrie, importantly, for he felt the burden of responsibility and hoped that this would mean promotion. Dollops, who was by no means a regular member of the force, simply looked at Cleek with considerable pride fighting through the natural horror that the find had given birth to.

"Funny thing!" broke in Cleek at this juncture. "The only solution must be that the body was placed there some time after death. . . . Leave it a little longer, boys, we'll have a further search in this direction. We may come upon poor Collins in a similar fashion, though thank Heaven his disappearance didn't happen quite so long ago."

They took a few steps farther in the same direction and—stopped simultaneously. Before their eyes lay the figure of Collins, in his discreet black clothes, his red head against a tuffet of moss, and a bullet wound in his temple.

"God!" said Cleek, softly, and sucked in his breath. "Two of 'em. And like this! . . . . Looks like a plant, doesn't it? Poor chap! . . . . And yet Merriton declared that he, as well as others, had searched every inch of this ground over and over again. Seems fishy. To find 'em both here—so close together. . . . Let's have a look at the other poor chap. . . . . Hmm. Bullet wound through the right temple, too. Small-calibre revolver."

He bent down and examined the head carefully through his magnifying glass, then got slowly to his feet.

"Well, Mr. Narkom," said he, steadily, "nothing to be done at present, but to get these bodies back to Towers. After that they can take 'em to the village mortuary if they like. But I've one or two things I'd like to ask Merriton, and one or two things I want to examine. Gad! it's a beastly task, boys. That sheet's big enough, thank fortune! Cross the pitchforks, Petrie, and make a sort of stretcher out of them, that way. That's right. Now then, forward. . . . Gad! what a morning!"

But if he had known just exactly what the rest of that morning was to bring forth, indeed before lunch was served at one-fifteen, he might have hesitated to pass judgment upon it so soon.

Slowly the cavalcade wended its way across the rank grass. . . .

Here Is Future Empress of Orient

Princess Nagako.

Versatile young Japanese woman has trained herself for four years to become wife of Prince Regent. Has been tutored in music, languages, poetry and art. Still keeps garden and raises crop of rice each year for offering to spirits of her ancestors.

Princess Nagako Masters Typing, Report; May Be Stenograp her for Japanese Ruler

By JAMES McCLAIN
For International News Service.

TOKIO, Aug. 25.—An expert gardener and a lover of all outdoors, an accomplished poetess and painter, perfectly at home whether at the piano, on the tennis court, at a typewriter, in the photographic dark room or in her little paddy field; an intelligent student of world languages and world happenings, deeply pious, sympathetic, beautiful and possessed of a lovable disposition—that is the nineteen-year-old Satsuma maiden destined to become the next empress of Japan. For four years now she has prepared for the time when she will become the bride of the prince regent, assuming then enormous responsibilities though a mere girl, which will be increased upon the death of the present emperor and the actual ascension of the Prince Hirohito to the throne of the empire. Yet she remains a child in many ways and retains her former interest in her occupations; today she keeps up her little garden at the Kuni palace, tending the plants and flowers herself and even raising a crop of rice each year, wading barefoot in the murky paddy field, nursing the little green shoots along and then harvesting the rice to place it as an offering to the spirits of the imperial ancestors at the shrine of the imperial palace.

Not At All Elusive

It was a year ago in cherry blossom time that I first saw her. Clad in the blue kimono and dark red skirt of the Japanese school girl, and with her hair in a braid down her back, she sat with a younger sister on the front row at a private recital given by foreign musicians. But it is no task to catch a glimpse of this little princess; at any sunrise, when the Kuni family is in the capital, she may be seen going from the family palace along the moat and into the imperial palace to make her daily prayers at the imperial sanctum.

It would seem that she is economical, too. Just the other day officials to the imperial household department carried to the prince regent an outlined budget to cover costs of the wedding. It totaled 5,000,000 yen. It was too much; the princess agreed and the amount was cut in half.

Although rumor has it that the prince regent is deeply in love with his future bride, they have not seen each other since the princess was three years old. Really the match was made in January, 1918, but it was not announced until March, 1921. Formal announcement came in June of this year, and the betrothal ceremony will be held in September. The wedding, it is said, will be in April or May of next year.

Statesmen Make Match

Satsuma statesmen made the match. When it became known the famous "serious affair of the imperial family" followed last year and ended with the crown prince declaring that he intended to wed Princess Nagako and the imperial family voted his wish. It was a great blow to the imperialistic Choshu clan, which has been accustomed to picking the emperor's consort. It was a great blow to Prince Yamagata—one which probably hastened his death.

Selected to wed the crown prince in 1918 although secretly, Princess Nagako was taken from the Peeress' school and with two girl friends for companions was placed under a corps of competent instructors at home. Ethics, Chinese classics, Japanese language and literature, English, French, history, geography, international politics and sciences have been taught her since. In addition she has become quite accomplished with oil and water colors and is now taking up charcoal drawing.

She may plan to be the prince regent's stenographer, too, for she has mastered the typewriter. Possessed of a fine soprano voice, she is being trained in singing by experts, and already she is able to play difficult music on the piano.

And maybe some day there will be jazz dance in the imperial palace; the spirits of former emperors would probably cause a great commotion in the empire, but it appears not impossible. Princess Nagako is said to be learning the intricacies of Western dancing, while the prince regent, after seeing the prince of Wales doing the latest steps at the British embassy ball last spring, declared he would learn them, too.

Out-of-Doors Girl

It is out of doors that Princess Nagako feels most at home. During leisure hours she is generally with her sisters on the tennis court at her home or back a little farther wading about in her rice field or tending the vegetables and flowers. She is fond of outings; when the plum blossoms are at their best the family goes to a villa at Atami, and when the cherry blossoms are out they go to Kyoto. Summers are spent at the seashore.

Just recently the family spent the week-end at the beach in Chiba Prefecture, and the photographs show that although Princess Nagako will some day sit on the lacquer throne in the coronation room of the ancient palace at Kyoto this does not take away any of the joy of wading about in the water or in digging clams in the sand.

Under guidance of her instructors the princess followed every step at the Washington conference by means of government cable reports, and since then it has been the same with Genoa and The Hague. Capital ships, poison gas, the warfare in China and even Russian debts have been analyzed for her benefit until she is said to be thoroughly familiar with them. It was not long ago that after one of these lectures she wrote:

"It is said that the sympathy for others differs with your station in life, and I fear that I, born in fortunate circumstances, have not a profound enough sympathy with the rest of the world."

APPARATUS AND DEVICES

By RALPH BROWN, RADIO ENGINEER

CRYSTAL DETECTOR

New adaptations of the crystal detector are always welcome to the radio public in general. One of the main disadvantages in the use of this type has been the oxidization of the crystal. This has been done away with by inclosing, not only the mounted crystal, but the terminal making contact to same in a transparent hood, so that the operator could see what he did in making contact. The cat whisker type of adjustment, furthermore, has the advantage of staying adjusted, even when unusually heavy jars are produced. Contact is made and kept by means of a movable and adjustable crystal cup. Motion is vertical and lateral as two nuts are provided to make said adjustment secure.

TRAINED NURSE

NEW YORK.—Hard luck has stalked in the wake of a "soft" mirror.

Mary Reeder, trained nurse, has filed suit for $2,500 against Sigmun Scheraga's store, because, she alleged in her petition, she was "shocked and upset" when a wall mirror fell and struck her on the head. The mirror didn't break until it struck the floor—but it brought hard luck to Miss Reeder and, perhaps, to Sigmund Scheraga.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY DIGS A WELL

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily was sitting on the porch of his hollow stump bungalow, he saw his muskrat lady housekeeper, Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, walking around the back garden, looking rather sad and romantic-like.

"What's the matter, Nurse Jane?" asked Uncle Wiggily, kindly. Are you looking for some one to play a game of tag with you? I would do it myself, only my rheumatism is paining me today."

"Play tag? Indeed, nothing of the sort." exclaimed Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "I was just thinking how much prettier and picturesque our place would look if we had an old-fashioned well, with a curb and sweep and a moss-covered bucket."

"Hum! Perhaps it would," agreed Uncle Wiggily, with a jolly little twinkle of his pink nose. "I know what you mean by moss-covered bucket to hang in the well, for I have heard a song like that. But what is the curb and the sweep?"

"The curb is the little stone wall around the well, so no one will fall in, explained Nurse Jane, "and the sweep is the long wooden pole, with a weight on one end. It works up and down like a see-saw, lowering the bucket into the well, and, when the bucket is filled with water, you lift it up with a sweep of the pole. That's why they call it a sweep, I suppose."

"You seem to know a lot about wells, Janie," spoke the bunny.

"Yes, we used to have one on the water farm where I lived when I was a young muskrat," explained Nurse Jane. "I wish we had a well here."

"You shall have one!" exclaimed the bunny gentleman, taking off his coat.

"What are you going to do?" asked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"Dig you a well " replied Mr. Longears.

"Oh, and you said your rheumatism pained you!"

"Digging a well will warm me up and make my rheumatism better," explained Uncle Wiggily. "I shall dig a well. All I have to do is to dig a deep hole in the ground, and keep on digging until I come to water. Then I'll build a curb of stones around it to keep the animal children from falling in. Next I'll put up a sweep and we'll have a well for you."

"It is very kind, I'm sure," said Nurse Jane.

"Pray do not mention it," spoke Uncle Wiggily with a low and polite bow of his pink twinkling nose. "I love to dig wells," and so he began. Part of the time he used his paws with which to dig in the ground, and again he used a shovel which he kept for spading the garden.

By noon time he had quite a deep hole, and by night it was much deeper. But Uncle Wiggily would have to go down deeper yet in order to find water.

"I'll do the rest of the well digging in the morning," explained the bunny gentleman. "And as there is no water in the well there is no need of a curb of stoes around the hole to keep anyone from falling in. Oh, my! I'm tired!" he sighed, as he stretched out his paws. "But it will make me sleep soundly tonight!"

Uncle Wiggily went to bed early that night, but the animal children stayed up to play tag, running around the hollow stump bungalow and having lots of fun.

At last it came time for the animal children to go to their homes and to bed. They had been playing hide-and-go-seek and Sammie Littletail had caught Floppy Twistytail where the piggie chap had hidden in a big hollow log. The little piggie boy crawled so far within the log that he became stuck there, and Mr. Stubtail, the kind bear gentleman, had to come and pull Floppy out with his claws. He scratched Floppy a bit, but not much and that was better than having to stay in a log all night, wasn't it?

Well, when the game was over, and all the animals children were in their homes and when night was settling down over the fields and forest, all of a sudden Mrs. Kat came running up mewing:

"Oh, where is Kittie? Has anyone seen Kittie Kat? Her brothers Tommie and Joie came home, but where is Kittie?"

"She was playing hide-and-go-seek with us," said Baby Bunty. "I saw her go and hide."

"But she didn't come in,' spoke Jackie Bow Wow.

"Oh, maybe she's lost!" chattered Billie Bushytail, the squirrel.

And it did seem so. For, though they all called Kittie's name, the little pussy girl did not answer. The night became blacker and blacker.

"Oh, what shall I do?" mewed Mrs. Kat.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as he awakened from his first sleep.

"We can't find Kittie!" the animal children answered.

"Hum! I have an idea. Perhaps I know where she is," said the bunny. "I'll look!" Quickly he dressed, and, taking a lantern made from a bottle filled with lightning bugs, he went to the well he had dug. Flashing the firefly lantern down in the well by a string, Uncle Wiggily saw, at the bottom of the hole, Kittie Kat fast asleep.

Uncle Wiggily saw Kittie Kat, fast asleep.

"What's the matter? Is it morning?" she drowsily asked as she opened her eyes.

"You fell in my well," said Uncle Wiggily. "It's a wonder you weren't hurt!"

"No, I didn't fall in," mewed Kittie. "I crawled in to hide away and I fell asleep. That's all the falling I did. I fell asleep!"

Then they all alighted, Uncle Wiggily helped the pussy girl up out of the hole and they all sang: "Ding-Dong Bell! Pussy's in the Well!" They went to sleep just as you must do. And if Little Boy Blue doesn't turn red when he spills raspberry jam on Miss Muffitt's dress, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's punctured tire.

VACUUM TUBES IN TRANSMISSION

Experimenters with only an A. C. source of supply may obtain excellent results by the use of "Kenotron" rectifying tubes. This method requires an A. C. transformer and two kenotrons arranged in a circuit to rectify both halves of the A. C. cycle. The transformer should be provided with a high voltage, secondary for the plate circuit supply, and with two additional secondaries providing a step down voltage to light the filaments of the power tubes and rectifying valves. In addition, a reactance and condenser must be supplied to smooth out the ripple in the plate current. The accompanying diagram, prepared by the manufacturers of the Kenetron and "Radiotron" tubes, describes this method in detail T is the power transformer; L, oscillation transformer; X, radio frequency choke coil; X2, plate reactor; X1, filter reactor; C3 and C4, filter circuit condensers; MT, microphone transformer; M, microphone transmitter; B1, microphone battery; SW, microphone switch; B2, grid bias battery; Rg, transmitter grid leak; C1, antenna series condenser; C5, blocking condenser, and C2, grid condenser.

NATURE'S BEAUTY SPOTS SEEN BY DR. BROWN

Oregon Marble Caves Among Many Places Visited on Two-Month Tour

Dr. Harry V. Brown of 144 North Orange street has returned from a two months' tour through scenic Northern California and Oregon.

A new conception of the natural beauty of the Pacific coast has been obtained by Dr. Brown. He has returned with more enthusiasm than ever for California. From a health standpoint the trip is considered quite successful and Dr. Brown has returned to Glendale ten pounds heavier than he ever was in his life.

San Francisco was the first stop on the outbound trip. Dr. Brown spent several days there in session with the state board of medical examiners of which he has been a member for about ten years. A number of applications for licenses were passed upon. He says that his duties as a member of this board give him a constant postgraduate course in medical science.

Brother Acts As Chauffeur

At Medford, Oregon, a brother, Dr. S. L. Brown, appeared upon the scene and acted as chauffeur in his car for the rest of the tour through Oregon. Both Crater Lake and the Marble Caves of Oregon were visited.

"The Oregon marble caves, they say, are second only to the Mammoth cave of Kentucky," remarked Dr. Brown upon his return. "It takes about two hours to go through them with guides. They consist of various rooms and formations about 50 miles southwest of the city of Granite Pass and not far from the California line.

"Hundreds of visitors are there every day and thousands of people are now going into Oregon that way. Most of the cars bear California licenses. Next year there will be a tourist hotel. This is the first year they had a good road in there. Heretofore, it has been necessary to walk ten miles over a trail to get to the caves."

At Portland an uncle, J. H. Brown, and family, were visited for two weeks and a most enjoyable time resulted.

Portland Booming

"Portland has taken a new lease on life," declared Dr. Brown. "I believe that Portland is about at the stage that Los Angeles was about 15 years ago. Los Angeles was just waking up then and has been growing steadily ever since.

"Portland's main asset, of course, is lumber, but the agricultural resources of that country have only been touched. They are going to have a wonderful fair in 1925. All the automobiles up there bear placards announcing it.

"The thing that impressed me the most on the trip was the wonderful lumber industry of Oregon, never having seen anything of that character before. All the lumber mills are active and turning out lumber, but there seems to be timber enough there to keep them running for hundreds of years to come.

"Oregon is making rapid strides toward covering her state with good roads. She is quite a ways behind California, but she is fully awake and running a close race. I do not know whether she will overcome any of the difficulties that California has had or not."

P. E. Employes Will Picnic at Redondo Beach on Saturday

The annual picnic and reunion of Pacific Electric employes, their families and friends, is scheduled for Saturday, August 26 at Redondo Beach, according to announcement of D. W. Pontius, vice president and general manager. The event is an annual affair that has been held by the Pacific Electric for many years. As many of the 6000 employes as can be relieved for the day without interfering with the service will be granted a holiday. Special train service for the huge crowd expected to attend has been arranged.

An extensive program of contests and events for young and old is scheduled and many cash and merchandise prizes will be awarded the winners. Program will include ball games between department teams, free dancing and bathing, tug-of-war, boxing and wrestling. Ice cream, candy, merry-go-round tickets and souvenirs will be supplied free to children.

For those employes who cannot be relieved from duty the management has arranged to allow a day off with pay at a later date, when special privileges will be accorded them.

'Midnight' Starring Constance Binney Is Glendale's Feature

Constance Binney, dainty little star of two short years, is rapidly graduating from mere pretty-girl roles into strong emotional acting. She has proved her ability to handle difficult roles by her splendid work in "The Case of Becky."

Now she is announced to appear as the star of "Midnight," a play by Harvey Thew, in which she has the role of a girl who committed the folly of marrying a worthless adventurer who disappeared the same day under circumstances which pointed to his death. How the spectre of this girlish folly rises up to haunt the girl when, a few years later, a real love comes into her life, makes strong drama and provides Miss Binney with a magnificent role.

"Midnight" will be seen here for two days beginning this afternoon at the Glendale Theatre.

Among coming attractions billed for the popular house is "The Six Brown Brothers" next Monday. Vaudeville will be seen tomorrow.

In all Great Britain during 1921 the right of naturalization was extended to only 1,053 persons. The right was revoked in the cases of 16 persons, one of whom was the former knight, Edgar Speyer, now of New York.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients in a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Advertisement.

SUGAR IN CONTROL OF MARKET GAMBLERS

No Longer Is It Commodity Says Observer at Tariff Debates

By J. E. JONES
Special to The Evening News

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—It has been many years since the local grocer posted signs in his window announcing "20 pounds of sugar for a dollar." One pauses to wonder in view of the tariff debate just closed, whether sugar is any longer a commodity or merely a gamble.

The statement went unchallenged in the senate debate that five of the sugar refiners of the United States control companies in Cuba which produce the greater bulk of all the sugar produced in that island. And usually it is not hard to get five concerns whose interests are identical to agree. Within the past year Cuban raws have sold for $1.67 a hundred pounds; but when sugar was a "war baby," and during that period well remembered by everybody and described by Senator Smoot as a "debauch of speculation and manipulation," raw sugars advanced to 23 cents a pound and in the east, where Cuban sugar supplies the market, granulated sugar sold as high as 35 cents a pound. Senator Smoot says that it has been estimated by reliable authority that the American consumer paid $600,000,000 for this experieince.

History of Speculator

Even at sky-high prices the speculators in Cuban sugar held their supplies for the market to go higher, but in the spring of 1921 forty-four different nations sought the American market, and found it profitable to pay even a higher tariff duty than the 1.67 preferential Cuban rate, and these new shippers of sugar to our shores dumped 800,000 tons of sugar into American markets. The "big five" American sugar refiners were whipped, and there was nothing left for them to do but hold the Cuban crop for better times. Cuba's house of cards tumbled down upon its foolish little head. Last January Cuban raws sold in New York as low as $1.67 per hundred pounds.

In the speculation and manipulation of Cuban sugar it is interesting to know that the American consumer usually stands the pinch. The sugar beet and cane producers in the United States are likewise the victims of the processes manipulated by the "big five," and their market and their prices are usually subject to the Cuban sugar manipulations. The third member of the triangle is Cuba. Little Cuba still has the luxuries of unrestricted horse racing and licensed booze and poses as an Arcady for sports; but financially our "little sister" is in fact the football of American sugar speculators.

In the tariff debate the American sugar producers have been fighting for protection against Cuban sugar. The senate has placed a duty of 2 1-3 cents a pound on sugar, and a 20 per cent differential in favor of Cuba, which will actually make the Cuban rate 1.84 cents a pound. Vaguely the sugar beet and cane growers believe that they can carry on their industry with this degree of "protection." In the senate arguments it has been usually asserted that this is "protection" against the Cuban crop. Getting down to the brass tacks of the debate one realizes that the "protection" asked for is really against the American sugar refining trust, manipulated in Wall Street.

Colonel Garland Is Guest of Honor at Realty Luncheon

Col. William May Garland, realtor, of Los Angeles, and director at large of the California Real Estate Association, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given on Thursday, August 24, by the state association at the Los Angeles Athletic Club. President C. C. C. Tatum of the state body presided. Colonel Garland has recently returned from Paris, France, where, with two other Americans, he represented the United States and secured for Los Angeles the international inaugural Olympaid games for September, 1923. Colonel Garland is a former president of the Los Angeles realty board and was twice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Realtors from many parts of the state were invited to this luncheon and more than fifty attended. A message of greeting from Herman Janss, director at large of the California Real Estate Association, who is en route westward by motor from an eastern summer trip, enlivened the meeting. The state real estate department was represented in the person of Commissioner Edwin T. Keiser.

CANCEL REALTY LICENSES

The real estate broker's license held by C. O. Jaggers, oil unit promoter, of Long Beach, was revoked by State Real Estate Commissioner Edwin T. Keiser for fraud in oil unit promotion, according to the news department of the California Real Estate Association in a bulletin just issued. The licenses of T. W. Kearns, L. A. Nugent and Abe Jacobs, officers of an oil and land corporation, operating at Los Angeles, also were cancelled by the state. Nathan Landsberg and Frank Baierski, real estate men at Los Angeles, had their licenses suspended for a year.

GREEN FLIES AND FEARS

"Fear is implanted in us as a preservative from evil but its duty, like that of other passions, is not to overbear reason but to assist it. It should not be suffered to tyrannize over the imagination, to raise phantoms of horror, or to beset life with supernumerary distresses."—Johnson.

This is the tale of a little girl and a green fly. Maybe you do not see how Samuel Johnson could have anything to do with a little girl and a green fly, but he really could.

The little girl belongs to a neighbor of mine. She is by nature a nervous, fearful little girl, the kind of child who is afraid of thunderstorms and cows and the dark, and who never needs to be warned not to go too deep into the water or not to pat strange dogs.

Just a Hateful Fly

The green fly was just a green fly, of the same pervasive, ill-bred personality as the rest of his ilk.

The little girl and I were sitting together out doors when the green fly buzzed around us and bit me. The little girl got up; "I think I'd better be going in the house," she said.

"Why?" I asked.

"I'm afraid that green fly might bite me," she said. "My aunt told me she knew a little girl and a green fly bit her and she was awfully sick and when she got well she couldn't walk by herself and had to go around on crutches for years. Oo, there he is again. I think I'd better go right into the house."

And she went.

Fears and More Fears

Poor little girl! To think that when by nature she has far more than her share of fears she should have to have more implanted in her by her family.

When she should be helped to cultivate courage and unconcern, how dreadful to fill her mind with more anxieties.

Of course one understands the state of mind of those who have children, they long to warn them of all dangers and set them as much as possible on their guard.

But there is a danger that way, too, especially to the nervous, timorous child.

I know a woman who with her first baby was so anxious that he should not take cold that she always covered him too warmly. When the doctor protested she said, "But isn't it better to put an extra blanket on him than to run any risk of his taking cold?"

No Extreme Safe

"Decidedly not," said the doctor, "there are just as many risks that way as the other. He may get hot and sweaty and throw off the blankets in his sleep and catch cold that way, or he may just get more sensitive to cold so that he will always be taking colds. The thing to do is to cover him just enough; not too much or too little. One is as bad as the other."

Is there not an analogy in that? We think we will be on the safe side and warn and restrict too much instead of too little. But is it the safe side? Isn't one as bad as the other? May we not make him so rebellious that he will throw off all restraint or so timorous that he will suffer all his life from apprehensiveness and anxiety?

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

I, I, I: I, MYSELF; I
THE HISTORY OF ME BY ME
CHAPTER XXIII
A Worry Story

Last week we had a terrible excitement at our house when I spat up a little bit of blood which I had nursed from the little crack in my mama's nipple. Mama was so upset thinking that I had some serious disease that she really made herself ill from it and the curious thing was that while I was not ill before, I was terribly ill afterward!

Instead of spitting up a little of my milk which I do occasionally, I vomited up a lot of it and I had diarrhea and I felt sumpthin' terrible. Doctor said that it was wholly due to the change that took place in my milk because mama had been so terribly upset and worried over my spitting up the blood. Isn't that strange?

Doctor says that it is not unusual at all for babies to be upset when mamas are upset and my Cherie says that it has taught her a big lesson.

It was lucky mama got our doctor before she got off to her medical convention because that little crack might have been the means of both mama and me having a very serious time. I don't mind being ill myself so much, but I would feel terribly if my mama should be ill on account of my being such a greedy baby and drawing so lustily on my milk that I made mama's nipple tender. Mama takes all the blame for this, however. She won't let me take any of it. She says that if she had kept something on the nipple to keep it soft and moist between my nursings after it got tender that it probably would not have cracked.

We got the lead nipple shields at the drug store as doctor directed and mama washed the nipple thoroughly and then kept one of the shields on it all of the time except when I nursed. Before I nursed and after I nursed she washed it very carefully each time, and I did not nurse so long on that breast as usual during this time.

These lead nipple shields, Doctor says, have proved very helpful, and she always uses them. Many physicians also advise them and in the great Lying-in-Hospital in New York they use them frequently.

The milk which flows from the nipple in conjunction with the lead of the shield seems to form an antiseptic solution and that, with continuous moisture, keeps the crack soft and antiseptic, and Nature soon grows a healing skin over it.

Doctor says she found that some of the peasant women of the Balkans had a method of treating their nipples if they get cracked that was somewhat similar. They poured some melted wax in a half shell of a walnut to take up some of the space and to line it smoothly and they keep this bound on their nipples. Doctor found some terrible breast abscesses among them so she does not advise this method.

Some physicians, instead of using softening antiseptic solutions on the nipples, will paint a crack with tincture of benzoin. They report good results from this. Others keep on antiseptic lotions such as boracic acid, mixture of bismuth and castor oil, etc.

It is highly important to keep a cracked nipple antiseptic because germs which cause inflammation think a crack is an open doorway inviting them in, and they go in and get into the milk glands. And, since they thrive on milk just as we babies do, they grow and grow and have big families and cause a lot of trouble unless they are ousted.

Mama discovered a little tender red spot in her breast which showed that some of these germs had gone in and were beginning to settle down. The redness showed that the blood had come there to try to kill them off.

Doctor said that we would have to help oust 'em, so she had mama gently massage the spot and then put large hot compresses for twenty minutes every two hours on the breast. This brought more of the protective blood to the place and it did kill 'em off for the spot disappeared in a day or so. Some physicians apply ice-bags at this state and apparently freeze the germs out, but my doctor says she has had better results in her cases by making it too hot for 'em.

Au revoir.

SUNDAY DINNER MENU

Tomato Canape
Jellied Chicken Stuffed Peppers
Cucumber and Chive Salad
Peach Ice Cream Lady Fingers
Cafe Noir

Tomato Canape — Cut stale bread in one-fourth inch slices, shape with round cutter, toast on both sides and spread with butter. Cover with a one-half inch slice of tomato each; place a spoonful of mayonnaise dressing on top of tomato and top with a slice of nicely broiled bacon. Garnish around edge with ring cut from green pepper.

Jellied Chicken—After cleaning and singeing, disjoint the legs and wings, and then separate the drumstick from the second joint. Wash quickly in cold water; put in pot and cover with hot water. Bring to boil, then simmer slowly until meat is tender; then cool quickly and remove chicken, strain liquid and pour over it and leave meat in stock until it is used. Soak one tablespoon gelatine in one-half cup of cold water fifteen minutes. Cut the chicken into pieces or strips as nearly one size as possible. Ornament the sides and bottom of mold with slices of hard boiled egg, then slices of pickle or canned pimientos cut into fancy shapes. Heat two cups of the chicken stock and dissolve the softened gelatine in it. When cold pour a little in mould, add chicken, egg, pimientos, etc., more gelatine mixture and so on until mould is filled. Chill thoroughly and when ready to serve turn out on lettuce leaves. Serve with tartare sauce.

Stuffed Peppers—Allow one-half pepper for each person to be served. Wash, cut in halves and remove the seeds. Soak in salted water for one hour, then boil in salted water for fifteen minutes. Drain and cool. Mix one and one-half cups cold boiled rice with two canned pimientos cut into thin strips, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup of soft stale bread crumbs, one egg and two tablespoons melted butter. Add a very little milk or cream to blend mixture and stuff into prepared peppers; cover top with buttered crumbs and bake in hot oven fifteen or twenty minutes.

Cucumber and Chive Salad—Select small thick cucumbers, allowing one for each person to be served. Pare and cut in small slices crosswise, not quite severing them. Arrange each one on bed of shredded lettuce or watercress, sprinkle with finely cut chives; chill and when ready to serve, pour over French dressing.

Peach Ice Cream—Mix one and one-half cups milk, one and one-half cups cream, one cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt and the whites of four eggs, beaten till stiff. Freeze to a mush, using three parts finely crushed ice to one part rock salt. Add one cup peach puree and one-half tablespoon lemon juice and continue the freezing.

Lady Fingers—Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff and dry, add one-third cup powdered sugar gradually and continue beating; then add yolks of three eggs, beaten until very light, and one teaspoon vanilla extract. Cut and fold in three-fourths of a cup of sifted flour. Shape with pastry bag and tube on buttered sheets of paper. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and bake eight minutes in a moderate oven. (Use just sufficient flour so dough will hold its shape when pressed through the tube.)

PLEADS IGNORANCE

RENO, Nev., Aug. 25.—Mrs. Onezima De Bouchel, whose engagement to Asa Candler, Atlanta, Ga., millionaire, was recently announced, denies reports emanating from New Orleans, her home city, that she had ordered an investigation of alleged "poison pen" letters. "I have employed Harold Moise as attorney about a property transaction," she said. "I know nothing of any letters.",

Beauty Chats by Edna Kent Forbes

FOR FRIVOLOUS MOMENTS

A few years ago I met a girl who failed to make a favorable impression until she wore a simple evening frock. I emphasize "simple" because rich materials and elaborate trimmings would have made her ludicrous. I recall she had pretty blue eyes, expressing candor and childish wonder. Her other features and her complexion were neither good nor bad. Her hair was wispy and somewhat drab in color. Probably she was still in her twenties, but her short plump figure was already settling at the waistline.

She was visiting an aunt when we met, a woman who was never so happy as when planning a dinner party. At her informal evenings at home, the casual guest might easily assume that such an interesting group of people must have been carefully chosen—yet they all just happened to call. It was always a lively party, just the kind in which a timid creature like Fredaline should have expanded; but the summer was more than half gone and the girl was still unnoticed. "She was such a pretty, sweet child!" Mrs. B. would sometimes exclaim when the remark had no place in any running conversation.

One day several of Mrs. B.'s many girl friends ran into her home for a hasty call and found themselves in an amusing situation. They had always been welcome and still no doubt of it, even when they found their hostess confused and awkward because she was trying to hide the fact that a dinner party was about due. The young men were already arriving early and Fredaline was completing a painfully perfect toilette. The girls were tactful enough to make plausible excuses for a hasty departure.

In tomorrow's Chat we will follow ou Fredaline's experience.

Tiny—Hollows and dark circles under the eyes are the result of poor health. Build yourself up with good, fresh air and exercise.

harm if the cream is good and pure. Most people need a cream as a cleansing agent, and people with rough dry skins are in need of a different sort of cream to nourish the skin. Cold cream by itself, however, will not cure pimples. As you weigh too much it would be well if you went on a light diet for a month. This will not only reduce you but cure the pimples and, most likely, your red nose tendency.

Tomorrow—The Frivolous Frock

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

LIMIT SLUSH FUNDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 25.—The senate privileges and elections committee reported favorably the Pomerepe bill designed to prevent excessive campaign expenditures by senators and representatives and to give congress the right to regulate such expenditures by limiting a senatorial candidate to $10,000 and a house candidate to $5000.

It's a Fact

ALL-AMERICAN COMMISSION

The Underwood bill to create an American commission to adjudicate American war claims against Germany and Austria and to pay such claims out of seized alien property was indorsed by A. Mitchell Palmer, former Attorney General, before a subcommittee, of which Senator Cummins is chairman. Senator Cummins announced that the hearings would be devoted entirely to the subject of the creation of a claims commission, and that in no way would it be permitted to include an investigation of the former or the present alien property custodian. Mr. Palmer contended that Germany should not be allowed to discuss the amount of American claims, holding that the Lusitania and all other claims should be fixed by an American and not by a joint commission. Going outside the question before the committee, former Alien Property Custodian Garvan declared that "the departments are filled with German spies and representatives that should be exposed."

AGRICULTURAL CLUBS

A total of 136,441 boys and girls were enrolled in agricultural extension clubs in 1921, for training in various phases of livestock work. These junior farmers owned, last year 76,148 head of farm animals and 554,286 fowls, representing a total value of $3,605,176.

TILDEN - JOHNSTON TEAM IS PICKED BY WALSH

Vincent Richards and Dick Williams Will Have to Sit on Veranda

By DAVIS J. WALSH
Sporting Editor International News.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25. — Although the official selection of the team is not to be made until 24 hours before the match, it is an even money shot right now that William T. Tilden, II, of Philadelphia, and William M. Johnston, of San Francisco, will carry the full and complete burden of America's defense of the Davis cup in the challenge round at Forest Hills. In other words, Tilden and Johnston, will perforce play the singles and then team up in doubles, while Vincent Richards and Dick Williams, remaining nominees, view the proceedings from the clubhouse veranda.

Johnston makes no secret of the fact that he wants to play with Tilden in the doubles. Tilden himself is for it. So, also, are the members of the Davis cup committee up to a certain point.

Still Wavering

Just at the moment they are wavering on the advisability of the plan, and Julian S. Myrick, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, has gone to Boston to watch the final rounds of the national championships in order that the decision may be hastened by whatever he may see.

The committee is looking for an even break in the singles, thus pinning the issue on the doubles match. That is why it leans toward the teaming of Tilden and Johnston, for they form the strongest combination available.

Franco-American Tennis Team Wins

CHESTNUT HILLS, Mass., Aug. 25.—The Franco-American team of N. W. Niles of Boston, and Jean Barota, of France, became a semi-finalist in the national doubles tournament when they defeated R. Norris Williams, II of Boston, and Watson Washburn of New York, the 1921 Davis cup team, yesterday afternoon. The scores were 6-3, 7-5, 3-6, 2-6, 6-2. The defeat of Williams and Washburn was the greatest upset of the tournament to date.

Barota's terrific volleying and the unsteadiness of the American team were factors in the Niles-Barota victory. The Frenchman drew applause from the gallery by his volleying and his speed with which he covered the court.

William Ingraham of Harvard, one of the favorites for the national junior singles championship, was eliminated in the semi-final round by Louis N. White of Austin, Tex., at 6-2, 6-4.

'Tillie' Walker Has 31 Homers to Date

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—Tillie Walker, outfielder for the Athletics made his thirty-first homer of the season in the second inning of yesterday's game with the Tigers. Walker is now only one home run behind Ken Williams of the Browns, who is leading the home run hitters with thirty-two. Johnson was pitching today when Walker made the homer.

The Sport Crucible
By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Just why a hand-picked ball club like the New York Yanks, maintaining a tremendous salary list to supplement the outlay of nearly a half million dollars in the purchase of stars within the last three years should be in second place today, presents a moral, perhaps, on the subject of legitimate and healthful upbuilding. The St. Louis Browns, now leading the way in the American league, have been assembled at a comparatively moderate cost. The Yanks are and always will be an extravagant venture.

So much money has been spent on the club since Ruth came here from Boston three years ago that the rest of the league can not be blamed for making the oft-repeated claim that the Yanks are buying the pennant. But it is easy to buy a pennant if the exchequer can stand the strain. It seems quite another matter to get an f. o. b. delivery of same.

The pennant is bought and paid for so far as the Yanks are concerned. But they may be placed in the annoying position of having paid for something they will not get.

The finish is only thirty-five games away, and owing to a league rule covering the matter, the Yanks are through with buying for the year. They must now proceed with what they have.

If the Yanks fail to win, and since they finish on the road, this is entirely possible, some difficulty may be experienced in recognizing the team next year. A second runner is almost certain to cost Miller Huggins his job and such stormy individuals as Carl Mays and others who have failed to deliver may have to seek employment elsewhere.

Immediate results is the demand. Perhaps that accounts for the hysterical buying and selling that goes on here every time either of the local clubs show signs of letting some rival make a real race of it.

Sports Chatter
By Bill Unmack
Pacific Sports Service

With the national tennis championships set for a start at Philadelphia on Friday, September 8, some interesting facts are revealed on an analysis of former "final" matches for the title.

In the last ten years, from 1912 to 1921, we find that winners have at different times had a tremendous battle to win, while on other occasions the victory has been gained with ease. We often read of five set matches being necessary to decide various tennis titles, but in the last ten years the winners have been forced to five sets only on three occasions. Twice the match went to four sets and the remainder of the finals were won outright in three sets.

Probably the hardest five set match in the last decade was the one in 1912 when McLoughlin defeated Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia for the title. It was a case of "The Comet" McLoughlin setting his back to the wall and fighting every inch of his way to victory. He lost the first two sets to Johnson 3—6 and 2—6 and was strictly speaking "up against it." He had to win the next three in a row and he did this, after his uphill fight 6—2; 6—4 and 6—2. Still another instance of the winner coming up from behind was the five-set match in 1916 when R. Norris Williams defeated Bill Johnston of San Francisco for the title. Johnston won the first and third sets, giving him the edge, and won the third set so easily, a "love" set that it appeared Williams had shot his bolt. Williams, however, recovered and won the final two deciding sets 6—2; 6—4.

The five-set match in 1920 between Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston was probably one of the most exciting and nerve-racking matches ever played for the title. Forty-seven games were played in the five sets, Tilden taking 25 to 22 by Johnston, while the actual points between them was very small. Tilden won the first and third sets, Johnston the second and fourth. Tilden as a matter of fact turned defeat into victory by a shot that has been called "one of those shots that are born of luck." It was the break that gave Tilden the 1920 title in what was unquestionably the hardest fought five-set match ever played in the national titles.

On the other hand, last year, 1921, Tilden had a comparatively easy time in winning the final when he defeated Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia in three straight sets in which the "Quaker City player" only took five games to eighteen by Tilden.

In 1917 there was no actual national championship though a patriotic tournament was held and the winner, R. L. Murray, has always been looked on as the National champion. In that match Murray lost the first set and had to come from behind to win his title in the next three straight. The next year 1918 the Nationals were revived and Murray showed his calibre by winning and defeating Tilden in three straight sets. The results of the finals in the last ten years follow: 1912, McLoughlin d. W. F. Johnson, 3-6; 2-6; 6-4; 6-21; 1913 McLoughlin d. R. Williams 6-4; 5-7; 6-3; 6-1; 1914 R. Williams d. McLoughlin 6-3; 8-6; 10-8; 1916 Williams d. W. M. Johnston, 4-6; 6-4; 0-6; 6-2; 6-4; 1917 Murray d. N. Niles, 5-7; 8-6; 6-3; 6-3; 1918 Murray d. Tilden 6-3; 6-1; 7-5; 1919 Johnston d. Tilden, 6-4; 6-4; 6-3; 1920, Tilden d. Johnston, 6-1; 1-6; 7-5; 5-7; 6-3; 1921, Tilden d. W. F. Johnson 6-1; 6-3; 6-11.

TO MODIFY PRIORITY

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 25.—Anticipating increased production of bituminous coal, the interstate commerce commission's "super-priority order," giving it authority to divert coal to meet emergencies regardless of contracts, will be abandoned Monday, Secretary of Commerce Hoover announced this afternoon.

The World Over
By Franklin B. Morse
Pacific Sports Service

The English Channel for generations has been a magnet for the long distance swimmer who is yearning for waters to conquer, and mighty of few of them have been able to negotiate. Only two have made the trip successfully, Captain Webb and Burgess. Probably a hundred have failed.

The latest bit of water that has attracted a swimmer in the channel between the coast of California at San Pedro, and Catalina Island. The distance is about the same as that between the English and French coasts. Whether or not the Pacific bit of water is as difficult of accomplishment remains to be seen.

It is dollars to doughnuts if the first man to attempt it fails, there will be scores of them on the job. If he succeeds, that will be the last we will hear of the Catalina Island strait.

Now that Babe Ruth has ceased to harry the umpires and to put his mind on the game he seems to be regaining his old time form as a home run clouter and the chances seem to be favorable for him to overhaul the men who now are leading him in the race. Ruth started out after the season was well under way and his opposition had a big margin of lead over him. If he succeeds in topping them by the time the season closes, it will leave him in undisputed possession of the place he came so near to losing through the childishness he displayed before he got into his stride.

John Black, the old golf master, who played second to Sarazen in the recent open golf championship, still is in the hospital as a result of the injuries he sustained in an automobile accident. Whether or not he ever will be able to play the wonderful game of golf he was capable of remains to be seen. It might be that he may never be able again to swing a club. Meanwhile, professional golfers on the Pacific coast are arranging for a number of special matches to be played for the old master's benefit. This movement is not unlikely to be followed by players in the middle and eastern states. Black recently received a fine and cheering telegram from Sarazen wishing him a speedy recovery.

According to the general report, wrestlers, aside of the few who have national reputations, did not fare particularly well during the past season, though none of them have been reported as lodging in the county poor houses. The trouble is that there is not enough promising material coming along.

Sport High Spots

Nothing lost, nothing gained! Such was the Angels' predicament yesterday in their mad scramble to overtake San Francisco before the close of the Pacific Coast league season. Although Killefer's hirelings were blanked in Sacramento by the invincible twirling of "Pinches" Kunz, practically no ground was lost either to the Seals or the Tigers. The former, in one of the wildest affairs ever played in the circuit, were nosed out, 17 to 16, in Salt Lake by a four-run Ute rally. Here in Los Angeles Bill Essick's so-called ferocious Bengals were having a difficult task in splitting even with the rejuvenated Portland Beavers. The present "ratio" of the leaders is: Los Angeles still eight contests behind Frisco and three and a half games behind Vernon.

Now that Jack Dempsey is in southern California for a few days and Jess Willard is still burning the trail of his conqueror for a return match, things are likely to start popping within the next few days in the way of accepting defies. If the Kansas farmer keeps insisting that he can knock the daylights out of Dempsey and that his challenges are being evaded it is more than likely that Dempsey will come forth with some sort of a statement. Willard has been training in earnest for almost two months with the full expectation that he would have been signed up by this time for a bout with the champion before the holidays. With the big fellow in his present attitude it is not likely that he will let all of his preliminary training go to waste without getting an answer from his many challenges.

The much-heralded 1922 football season was opened yesterday for the first time in any section of the country, the University of Santa Clara gridders being the tanbark athletes who are breaking the ice. With more than twenty candidates out for practice the prospective varsity men went through signals, tossed the ball around and engaged in several "skull practices." The first game to be played by Santa Clara will be on September 9 with the U. S. S. California squad. Andy Smith's Golden Bears from Berkeley will draw the second battle, their contest being scheduled for September 30.

With a chance at a championship bout with "Strangler Lewis" in case he wins against Wladek Zbyszko tomorrow night at the Hollywood stadium, Toots Mondt declares that he has trained down to his best grappling weight and that a real battle is to be expected. Mondt, who is well known in Glendale through his two appearances here with John Hackensmidt, recently moved from Greeley, Colo., to take up his home in Los Angeles and it is his greatest desire to introduce himself to his new neighbors in an impressive fashion.

Tomorrow night's bout will be the main event of the all-star wrestling card that is being arranged by Umberto Revere for the Hollywood American Legion stadium. Bull Montana is to act as referee in the various bouts.

SENSATIONAL PLAY BETWEEN LOCALS AND PIRRONE'S

Baseball Fans Will Enjoy Great Treat In Clash on Sunday Afternoon

By TED JOHNSON

A sensational baseball game is promised by John A. Cobb, manager of the Glendale Merchants' baseball team which is to play Joe Pirrone's "All Stars" from Los Angeles Sunday afternoon at the Glendale ball park, Park avenue and San Fernando road.

Cobb has been in hopes for some time of securing a game with the much-touted Pirrone team. The latter claims the semi-professional championship of southern California, and Cobb offers his team as a good contradictory argument to that claim.

Pirrone is the local scout for the Chicago Cubs, says Cobb, and always manages to have a good team in the field. His nine is recognized in Los Angeles as one of the leading teams. Cobb, for this reason, has been eager to schedule a game, and Sunday he will determine the matter for himself.

Aageson on Mound

The game will start at 3 o'clock with Aageson on the mound for Glendale. Cobb is taking no chances, and Aageson, Harris and Johnson are all working out these hot days. Harris and Denny Johnson will be held in reserve Sunday, in case something unlooked for happens. The reserve is more a matter of form, however, for Aggie usually goes over big, and has lots of steam left when the ninth closes.

A surprise is in store for southern California a week from Sunday, for on that day the Merchants are to play their third game of the season with the Cleary Athletic club of Los Angeles. At a meeting of the Greater Southern California Baseball association held in Los Angeles last night, Cobb and Cleary booked the game, to be played in the White Sox park in Los Angeles.

The Clearys have already played two games against Glendale, one of which they lost, and the other they won. The game a week from Sunday will decide the rubber, and Cobb intends that the decision shall come his way.

Gain Recognition

The Glendale Merchants are rapidly becoming recognized as one of the few good teams in the southland. The already strong organization is still developing and additions are to be made. Walt Heidler, one of the star twirlers for the Merchants, who severely injured the thumb of his left hand a few weeks ago will be back in the game within a few weeks. His thumb is healing rapidly, and it will be only a question of days now until it is as good as ever, and Walt getting back into form.

Jack Ferlin, formerly of the Modesto Reds, who came to Glendale a month or so ago, will have his business affairs running smoothly within a week or so and will then start in with Cobb's aggregation. Jack is a sweet one with the willow, and buzzes around fielding balls in great fashion.

A meeting of the Merchants' baseball team will be held this evening at the Sport Shop, 146 South Brand, to talk over plans of defeating Pirrone's gang, and to figure on the third Cleary game a week from Sunday. City Manager Reeves, an ardent baseball fan and one of the strongest boosters for the Merchants, has been invited to make a little talk to the team.

King Leads Batsmen

Manager Cobb has announced the batting average of each player on the team to date. It is as follows:

	AB.	H.	Ave.

Tagging All Bases

The Giants picked a full game on the field by tossing the Reds for a 2 to 1 defeat in their final appearance on the banks of the American Rhine. Barnes, the elder, was found for 9 hits, Luque only 6, but the signor issued 4 passes and some of them hurt.

Just by way of preliminary sharpening of the batting optics for the big Yank series, the Browns shelled three Red Sox pitchers for 20 hits and won, 13 to 2.

In as wild and goofy afternoon as St. Louis has known in many years, Gibson ended everything by smacking a home run in the ninth, giving the Braves a 12 to 11 decision over the Cardinals.

The Senators played bad baseball but not bad enough to stop Walter Johnson from shutting out the White Sox, 1 to 0, with 5 hits.

JOHNSON BACKED BY SIBERIAN VETS

Boys Saved From Frozen Hell Remember Senator In Present Campaign

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25—Here is a letter received by the Johnson-for-Senator club of Los Angeles from a veteran of the Siberian expedition of the American forces:

"There is not one man who was in Siberia during the world war and on the first day of the year of 1919 who will ever forget that day.

"On this New Year's day we were hugging every stove in sight and wishing for the balmy climate of California. Outside our barracks the wind was blowing about 400 miles an hour, the American thermometer was frozen and busted, and the Russian speedometer had rushed down to 60 degrees below zero. The windows of our barracks caved in under the terrific pressure of the wind.

"I was sitting on a bunk talking to some of the buddies and a man from Los Angeles yelled out: "Prune pickers sound off. Listen to this": He had a Los Angeles newspaper. "Hiram Johnson of California is making a fight to get American soldiers out of Siberia."

They Will Not Forget

"He also read to us that Mary Pickford was doing her bit to help us get out of that frozen hell. At that moment I declared to myself if I ever got a chance I would do my bit to help those two Californians in any way I could. I have been trying to do so. I see every picture of 'Our Mary,' and help her just that much. As for Mr. Johnson, I am preaching him daily to those people who are hard to please. Always bear this in mind, buddies and fellow citizens—we had lots of Moores in the senate counting over their millions while we were in that frozen hell, and saying to themselves: 'We should worry, let them freeze.'

"There are at least 10,000 voters in California who remember that Siberian campaign, either from personal experience or from some friend or relative, and they are going to remember it at the polls. I am for Johnson."

(Signed) "P. M. MORRELL,
Former Chief Clerk United States Government on the Trans-continental Siberian Railroad, During the World War, and Member of the American Legion, Charles P. Rowe Post No. 30, Pomona."

Surprised to Hear They're Reported Lost

DENVER, Aug. 25.—Walking nonchalantly downtown yesterday after landing here in their airplane, H. E. Cornell of Winter Haven, Fla., and George W. Haldeman of Lakeland, Fla., were surprised that they were the objects of a search by an airplane company at Dayton, Ohio, and friends in Walla Walla, Wash.

The two men left Dayton, Ohio, in their airplane for Walla Walla, Wash., August 14 and no word had been heard of them since, according to the dispatch.

They arrived here yesterday from Wichita, Kan., without mishap and have had little difficulty on their trip from Dayton. They expect to resume their westward flight today.

Book Reviews

"Gentle Julia," by Booth Tarkington, is among the recent additions to the shelves at the Glendale public library on Harvard street. The author shows the effect of Julia, a young girl in her early twenties and possessed of charms of face and manner and a gift of bewitching dress, on the young men of her acquaintance, rather than the influence of the men on Julia.

"In the Days of Poor Richard," by Irving Bacheller. A novel of the founding of the republic, the great adventure of this country's history. It is the drama of this nation's birth.

"Rimrock Trail," by J. Allan Dunn. An entrancing yarn of Golden West and Golden Days.

"Mendoza and a Little Lady," by William Caine, delightful and numerous story of the studios.

"Mr. Prohack," by Arnold Bennett. The moral of the author's latest kindly vivisection of modern society is: "Let all pleasantly, or even unpleaantly, seedy husbands think twice before they allow a rich friend to die in a benevolent frame of mind."

"Daisy Ashford," her book, with a preface by Irvin S. Cobb. For an inimitable mixture of naivete and sophistication Daisy Ashford is unsurpassed.

"Figures of Earth," by James Branch Cabell. A comedy of appearances.

"Great Ghost Stories."

"The Story of the Other Wise Man," by Henry Van Dyke.

"The New Program of Religious Education," by George Herbert Betts.

"The Penance of Magdalena," and other tales of the California missions, by J. Smeaton Chase.

"Sunset Canada," British Columbia and Beyond, by Archie Bell. Every page teems with interest.

They Say That

The Swiss watch and clock industry, unlike other Swiss industries, does not suffer acutely from competition, because no country, which before the war was not a watch and clock producer, can have commenced manufacturing on such a scale as to constitute a menace to Switzerland's well-established foreign trade, says Consul Mathee, Zurich, in a recent dispatch to the Department of Commerce. Therefore, although much time will pass before flourishing conditions will obtain, the Swiss clock and watch industry promises to come back into the strong position it occupied before the present depression commenced.

Switzerland exported $1,299,432 worth of watches, clocks and parts to the United States during the last quarter of 1921, and $1,391,000 worth during the first quarter of 1922. The total value of watches and clocks exported from Switzerland amounted to $6,577,729 for the third quarter of 1921, $7,381,545 for the last quarter of 1921, and $5,968,146 for the first quarter of 1922. Decreased exports to Germany and Austria are chiefly responsible fro the drop in total values in the first quarter of 1922.

From these figures it can be seen that the value of exports in the fourth quarter of 1921 increased over the value of exports during the third quarter. This increase was probably due to the Christmas trade. The notable decline in export values for the first quarter of 1922 is indicative of the real state of affairs in the Swiss watch and clock industry.

Wine Enough Here to Quench L. A. Thirst

Figures completed yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell show that 21,371,820 gallons of wine is on hand in bonded wineries and government warehouses in California. This ocean of wine does not include private stocks held in homes.

California's supply of wine would provide six and one-half gallons for every man, woman and child in the state, or a pint and one-half for every man, woman and child in the United States. Virtually the whole world could be invited to partake of a glass of wine as the stock on hand would furnish 1,303,909,200 drinks of the various types of the sweet or dry beverage.

If the water supply of Los Angeles were cut off and the wine on hand turned into the mains it would supply the requirements of the entire city for a period of six hours. Los Angeles uses 85,000,000 gallons of water daily during the summer months.

An outstanding feature of Collector Goodcell's survey is that the production of wine in California curing the past year has exceeded the withdrawals to such an extent that the wine supply is increasing at the rate of 3,485,843 gallons annually.

To Can String Beans

the Easy Lorain Way

String and grade. Put in cheese cloth bak and scald from 5 to 10 minutes in boiling water. Cold-dip. Pack whole, to 1-4 inch from top of jar. Add boiling water, and 1 teaspoon salt (for quart jar). Adjust scalded rubbers, put jars in oven. Set Lorain regulator at 250 degrees, leave the hot kitchen for 2 hours and forget your canning. When alarm clock rings at the end of that time, remove jars from oven and seal tightly.

To Can Tomatoes

the Easy Lorain Way

Select solid ones, scald long enough to loosen skins. Dip in cold water, core and peel. Pack whole, to within 1-2 inch from top of jar. Add no water. Add 1 teaspoon salt (for quart). Place scalded rubbers in position. Adjust lid loosely. Put jars in oven. Set Lorain wheel at 250 degrees. Forget them for one hour, while you rest. Remove jars from oven and seal tightly when alarm clock rings. That's all.

To Can Beets

the Easy Lorain Way

Clean well, scald about 5 minutes. Cold-dip. Remove skins. Pack whole, sliced or cubed. Fill jar with boiling water, adding 1 teaspoon salt for quart jar. Put scalded rubbers in place, leave lids loose. Set Lorain regulator at 250 degrees, and cook in oven for 1 1-2 hours, unwatched. Meanwhile, you rest where it is cool. Remove jars and seal them when alarm clock rings. Isn't that easy?

How to keep cool while canning

The famous Lorain Oven Heat Regulator has changed home canning methods—made it easy and always successful. Read the recipes. Isn't that an improvement over the old way?

No more standing over steaming kettles on a scorching stove, while the kitchen heat rises far above the temperatures of a July day. Lorain canning means resting on your cool veranda while Lorain watches the job.

No need any longer to stay for weary hours in the hot kitchen to watch steaming kettles. Any woman who cooks with gas can do her canning with far less time and work! Thousands of women praise this Lorain oven method.

With a Lorain equipped Clark Jewel, all canning is very simple and easy, as you'll see from the above recipes.

You don't have to stay in the kitchen, after preparing the vegetable or fruit and putting the jars in the oven! While Lorain watches the canning you are free to do other things.

You will find, too, that fruits and vegetables done the Lorain way keep their firmness, color, and fresh-from-the-garden taste perfectly. There are many advantages of oven canning by measured time and temperature. Let us demonstrate them to you now, and give you the free illustrated booklet, "Lorain Oven Canning."

LORAIN - OVEN HEAT REGULATOR

The Lorain Oven Heat Regulator is an attachment on Clark Jewel gas ovens. It automatically keeps your oven at any one of 44 different temperatures. Simply set the "red wheel" for any heat you want. Changes in gas pressure, etc., do not affect the oven temperature.

CLARK JEWEL GAS RANGES

The baked-on finish of these ranges gives them a lustrous, durable surface that is as easy to keep clean as it is good to look at. All-steel construction prevents breakage. A variety of pleasing styles and convenient sizes to choose from.

Ohio Woman Raises Lion, Found Starving

DEFIANCE, Ohio—About a month ago a Baltimore & Ohio brakeman carried to Mrs. C. G. Shirley, who operates a small restaurant patronized largely by railroad men, a basket containing what he thought was a pup. He found it, in an empty freight car, nearly dead from starvation.

Mrs. Shirley fed her new pet, naming it "The Bum."

Now the animal is developing a shaggy mane on a massive head, walks impatiently in a circle, strikes with its paw and growls. It has never barked. It's hide is developing peculiar markings of splotches. It prefers a raw meat diet and is growing rapidly.

Mrs. Shirley believes the cub was stolen from a menagerie by some helper who was forced to abandon it while making his getaway on a freight.

THAT'S ALL

Rather Warm, What?
Why Johnson, Richardson
Also, Lineberger, Weller
Political Sidelights

By Gil A. Cowan

WELL, things are warming up quite a bit! Not alone are politics hotter than ever, but the weather man was right when he predicted higher temperature for today.

Undoubtedly we will hear of some heat prostrations in the camps of some of the impossible candidates for this, that and the other thing.

The tactics being used in behalf of Senator Johnson's opponent become more apparently ridiculous each day and now it seems likely that more votes will be lost because of the absurdity of arguments advanced in his behalf.

The Glendale Evening News advocates the re-election of Hiram Johnson, first because he is the strongest man in the field; second, because he is representative of the people and not the interests; and, third, because he votes and speaks as his conscience dictates.

In the case of Friend W. Richardson, candidate for governor on the Republican ticket, you will find upon investigation that he is much better fitted for the position than the incumbent, not to forget his pledge of economy in state administration. Further than that State Treasurer Richardson is a man of the people, irrespective of the Los Angeles Times supporting him because they dislike Stephens and his machine the more.

While Governor Stephens preaches the doctrine, "No one can tell me what to do," one arises to inquire about his recent appointments to the railroad commission and find that Mr. Richardson pledges to kick out the coterie of politicians who are presently leading the governor blindly about.

If the general public could see behind the scenes and know the facts there is no question but what Hiram Johnson and Friend William Richardson would be nominated by overwhelming majorities.

Such a result would be the biggest blow to "ring" politics that California has ever seen—not barring the old S. P. machine.

There are two other candidates The Evening News feels free to recommend to Republicans and those are Walter F. Lineberger for representative in congress and Frank C. Weller of Glendale for representative in the state assembly. Both of these men served in the army during the world war. They are frank and honest and appreciate the needs of the district. They are competent to administer those needs and there is no particular reason for a party man here voting for anyone else.

Insofar as Democrats are concerned it would be quite a compliment for Glendale to have Mattison B. Jones nominated in the gubernatorial race. However, he is not so well advertised as his opponent and it will take every vote he can muster to defeat Tom Woolwine, arch enemy of the Ku Klux.

There is one candidate on the primary ticket who smiles blandly and spends nothing in electioneering. That fellow is Attorney Owen C. Emery, incumbent, who will be re-elected justice of the peace. It is too bad some busybody didn't run against him to cause his contributing to the printer.

J. E. Jones, our Washington correspondent, writes on the coal situation as follows:

New England has awakened to the fact that it cannot possibly get anthracite coal this winter and a despairing wail from the fuel administration of Maine says: "The consumers must plan to use soft coal, and they will be fortunate if they are able to obtain it." Chicago sees a famine in coal "fifteen days away." Even Pennsylvania, whose political government tops all the rich coal fields, foresees early "hardships to domestic consumers."

People who have used their eyes during the past few weeks could hardly fail to observe that there has been a genuine rush upon the coal supplies. In the cities the coal trucks have been going day and night, never letting up even on Sundays. The purchasers have usually been large consumers with hotels, apartment houses, large buildings or factories to look after. As a rule the ordinary householder has not been among the patrons. In a few weeks everyone must have coal. The above are straws that show which way the wind has been blowing. "The other 70 or 80 per cent" of the population will have to take turns under the distribution programs of the national and state fuel administrations.

Soldier Spends $90 for Birthday Present

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—Private Reid Lee Hood, Sixty-Fifth coast artillery corps, U. S. A., spent $90 getting himself a birthday present in the form of a discharge from the army three months in advance of the expiration of his second enlistment.

The direct cause of his expenditure was notification from Muskogee, Okla., that money and property in excess of $250,000 were his by reason of attainment of his twenty-first birthday. His guardian, T. E. Lipscomb, advised he was ready to turn over the inheritance.

A horse ran away on Broadway, New York. It saw another horse.

'One Clear Call' at T. D. L. for Today

If you want to see a picture that will make you laugh and will make you cry, that will thrill you with the man-hunt of sinster-looking, wild-riding clansmen, and that will hold you in suspense during the anxious moments of a tense operation scene, don't fail to see "One Clear Call," which opens at the T. D. & L. Theatre today.

Taken all in all, "One Clear Call" ranks as a great picture. The stellar honors for the cast are about evenly divided between Milton Sills, Irene Rich, Henry Walthall and Claire Windsor, while Doris Pawn, Joseph Dowling, Shannon Day, Donald MacDonald, Edith Yorke, Nick Cogley, Annette De Foe, Fred Kelsey, William Marion, Stanley Goethals and Albert MacQuarrie are all entitled to high praise for the splendid interpretation of their various roles.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE OF AMERICA

Wayne B. Wheeler, 30 Bliss building, Washington, D. C., May 18, 1922.

Hon. Walter F. Lineberger, M. C., Washington, D. C. Dear Mr. Lineberger:

I understand that some question has arisen about the motion to recess Congress on August 24, 1921, when the Anti-Beer Bill was pending before that body.

The concurrent resolution for adjournment from the 24th of August to the 21st of September, 1921, was adopted by a vote of 144 to 130, with 155 members not voting. The vote was no test as to the wet or dry proclivities of the congressmen. The Record shows this. The practical question at issue was whether or not the beer regulations would be promulgated during the recess, and the republican floor leader of the house and the leaders for the bill in the senate had assurance from the secretary of the treasury that the regulations would not be issued during the recess.

Many members of the house and of the senate who are strong dry advocates favored adjournment for reasons set forth in the record. Some of the outstanding wet advocates were opposed to adjourning, such as MacGregor of New York, whose statements in the Record are used as wet propaganda. Other opponents of prohibition, like Congressmen McGee, Curry, and others, voted against adjournment. A long list of known advocates of prohibition who voted for adjournment include the republican and the democratic floor leaders of the house and sixty-nine others who voted for prohibition enforcement legislation. Any effort to make this vote a test of a congressman's loyalty to prohibition and its enforcement is unwarranted. You were not present when the vote to adjourn was taken. Your outstanding advocacy of prohibition and its enforcement and your vote for the Supplemental Volstead Act or the Anti-Beer bill, and the aggressive help which you have given the friends of prohibition enforcement entitle you to the confidence of the friends of this cause in your district.

Yours very cordially,
(Signed) W. B. Wheeler.

435-439 I. N. Van Nuys Building, Seventh and Spring Streets, Los Angeles, California., August 19, 1922.

Mr. Cadet Taylor, 415 Lankershim Building, Los Angeles, Calif.

My Dear Mr. Taylor: Your letter, inquiring as to my knowledge of Mr. Lineberger's work and influence in congress and his vote on all measures pertaining to the Volstead Act and other prohibition measures, at hand.

I am glad to say that on every occasion when the prohibition and the Volstead Act has been before congress, Mr. Lineberger stood four square in its support. He stood for the Willis-Campbell anti-medicinal beer measure and again every effort to raise the alcohol content of the Volstead Act.

He has also been prominent in every phase of prohibition, such as:

The changing of the three-mile zone limit, in which American vessels could dispose of intoxicating liquors.

Not only that, he has taken great interest in law enforcement in Southern California and has backed every effort of the dry forces to secure the best possible appointees.

When I was in Washington in December of last year, the strongest friends of prohibition told me that the cause had no stauncher supporter than he. Among these were Congressmen Volstead, Nelson, Major Haynes, prohibition enforcement commissioner and others. Indeed, Mr. Lineberger's record on prohibition and law enforcement measures have been 100 per cent good.

Cordially yours,
(Signed) S. T. Montgomery.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES
House of Representatives

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29, 1922. Mr. G. H. Welch, Long Beach, Calif. Dear Sir: Your favor of the 19th instant received.

You inquire the attitude of Maj. Walter F. Lineberger on the Eighteenth Amendment and the National Prohibition Act.

Since Mr. Lineberger has been a member of the House he has staunchly supported this amendment and all legislation designed to enforce it. I have no hesitation in assuring you that he can be counted on to actively and loyally support prohibition.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) A. J. Volstead.

HARDING CONFERS ON RAIL STRIKE

Inability of Carriers to Transport Commodities Soon Will Be Seen

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25. — While congress wrestled around today with coal legislation, President Harding met again with his cabinet at the White House to consider governmental policies in the railroad strike—the "key" to the whole chaotic industrial situation.

Unless the shopmen's strike is settled within a reasonably short time, it was readily conceded by cabinet members that the beneficial effects of the bituminous adjustment will be largely nullified through inability of the railroads to transport the coal.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover took to the cabinet meeting optimistic reports regarding production of essential bituminous coal. The major problem now, he said, is transportation of coal to those sections of the country where it is most needed.

Railways' Task Big

The railroads are facing a gigantic task in the movement of commodities of all description.

Car shortage is normal at this time of the year. It has been accentuated now by the eight weeks' strike of railway shopmen and impaired motive power has resulted in thousands of loaded cars being sidetracked along the main lines because of scarcity of locomotives to haul them. Some coal experts, identified with the federal coal commission, estimated today there were 30,000 cars of coal delayed in the mid-west.

To all appearances today, President Harding and his advisers were still looking hopefully toward New York, where negotiations are pending between the strike leaders and a growing number of railway executives over separate peace adjustment.

Four-Century Old Books Are Found Right In Glendale

"The best thoughts of the best minds of the ages are embalmed in books," somebody once wrote —it makes no difference who, for 'tis unlikely that anyone will want to call him a liar at this late date.

Some embalmed specimens are right here in Glendale!

If you wish to see how little the trend of thought of four centuries ago differs from that of the present days of jazbo flappers, gas wagons and Volstead victims, throw an inquiring optic upon the pages of that volume published in 1589, entitled "Thucydides de Bello Peloponesiaco Libre VIII," whatever that is. Ask E. C. Hale, "Dear Katie's Friend, in the Court Shops.

Works of Voiture

Or perchance your thirst for knowledge of ye olden times would quench more readily by the liquid French of "Les Oeuvres de Monsieur de Voiture," published at Paris in 1665, at the house of Thomas Iolly in the palace in the little hall of Merciers at the Palm and the Holland arms, with the privilege of the king! Again ask Mr. Hale.

Then, again there is that well known best seller printed in 1690, "Opera Omnia," by C. Suetonii Tranquilli, subtitle, "Oron II e Theatro Cheldoniano"; or a bible in Swedish tongue, but old German type, in the fly-leaf of which one Hans Olsen subscribed his name in excellent ink on February 28, 1771. Ask Mr. Hale.

History of Roman Republic

Printed in London in 1732 and "English'd by Mr. Ozell from the Original," the "History of the Revolutions that Happened in the Government of the Roman Republic" might be found replete with snappy stuff.

What Glendalian can offer an older collection of literature?

Snake-bite is now treated with a serum similar to the anti-tetanus serum. A snake farm in operation in Brazil furnishes the poison or venom which is diluted with sugar of milk and injected into mules and other animals. The vaccine obtained from the treated animal is said to be an absolute antidote against the poison of the particular snake from which the venom was drawn.

CONGRESS FLARES TO ACTION ON COAL PROBLEM

Peril of Fuel Famine Starts Stampede In Both House and Senate

By J. BART CAMPBELL

For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25. — Stampeded into decisive action by rapidly increasing peril of a fuel famine this fall and winter, congress dropped everything today for consideration of drastic measures to keep the country supplied with coal during the coming cold months and to prevent a recurrence of existing or impending coal shortages due to the anthracite and bituminous strikes.

A grave danger of intense suffering and sickness—even freezing—among the people of those states where winter is most severe —dinned into the ears of senators and representatives alike by a torrent of telegrams, galvanized both senate and house into grappling with a situation which threatens to become worse than that of the terrible winter of 1917-1918.

Seizure Urged

Gone was the thought of the senate concentrating its attention upon the soldiers' bonus bill while the house did little or nothing until the tariff measure is out of conference and before it again. Senate debate turned from the bonus to the coal crisis and to the railroad strike.

Seizure of the coal mines by the president unless the anthracite strike is soon settled, urged by Senator Calder, Republican, New York, was before the senate interstate commerce committee in the form of a joint resolution offered by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, to empower the president to take over all mines whose productions are shipped in interstate commerce in order to open them up and furnish coal to the people. While the Walsh resolution was aimed at all mines, it was intended as a weapon to be used to deal with the anthracite situation.

Frank C. Weller In Whirlwind Campaign for State Assembly

Frank C. Weller, Glendale's candidate in the primary election for the position of assemblyman from the 61st district, is making a whirlwind finish to a campaign in which his wife, Dorothy Lee Weller, has done some wonderful work in her husband's behalf.

Mrs. Weller personally took charge of posting cards for him and on several occasions has used verbal arguments to win votes. Last night Mr. Weller visited Van Nuys. Tonight he is at Garvanza, tomorrow he will visit Lancaster and all way points and Monday he will devote to home precincts, although his work as assistant counsel for the Los Angeles Wholesalers Board of Trade keeps him very busy.

Being a former service man and member of Glendale post, No. 127, American Legion, and carrying the indorsement of practically all of the political organizations there seems to be no reason why Glendale will not name a successor to the position held by John Robert White, Jr.

California has the record of 4.61 persons per motor vehicle.

GERMANY FACES RUHR INVASION

Cabinet Crisis Will End In Resignation of Wirth Ministry, Belief

By S. D. WEYER

For International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—Chancellor Wirth's government today was confronted with the gravest crisis since it took office as a result of the indemnity snarl. It is learned that decisions of the gravest importance are impending.

Germany offered to place 50,000,000 gold marks at the disposal of the inter-allied representations commission as a guarantee to pledge coal and timber deliveries, but M. Mauclere, chairman of the guarantee commission, rejected it. Sir John Bradbury, British representative on the reparations commission, who came to Berlin with M. Mauclere to examine Germany's pledges, was willing to accept the offer, but he was over-ruled.

U. S. Envoy Calls

The cabinet was in session throughout the greater part of the night. Subsequently A. B. Houghton, American ambassador, called upon Chancellor Wirth and made inquiries regarding the situation. The chancellor made no effort to hide the seriousness of Germany's position, and admitted that a catastrophe confronts the nation. The chancellor said he feared that it would be too late to do any good even if a five months' moratorium were granted right now.

Later on, Hugo Stinnes, the industrial magnate, called upon Chancellor Wirth.

Invasion Certain

Belief was expressed that the only thing that can save the present cabinet from humiliation and resignation is a flat declaration to the world that Germany has abandoned the "policy of fulfillment"—that is, the policy of meeting the allied demands on indemnity. Such a declaration, if was pointed out, would give the Wirth ministry a united political front regardless of all consequences and even if the French should carry out their threat to occupy the Ruhr coal fields with troops.

Following the recent speeches of Premier Poincare of France, it is regarded as certain in some government circles that France will send her troops into the Ruhr within a very short time.

Industry Ruined

The plunge of the value of the German mark downward 600 points in a single day constituted a death blow to German industry. Many factories will be forced to close down within the next fortnight throwing hundreds of thousands of workmen out of employment. Already there is much misery among the working classes and there is a growing disposition to believe that increasing unemployment will lead to dangerous troubles. Twenty German marks of the normal value $5, can now be bought for one American penny. The sudden tobogganing of the mark on Thursday was attributed to M. Mauclere, who, as France's delegate on the guarantee committee, and also chairman of that organization, insisted upon French seizure of all German state owned forests and coal mines and military occupation of the left bank of the Rhine.

J. A. Daley Goes East to Convention

Glendale patrons and friends of the Daley Rock Bottom stores will receive with interest the announcement that Joseph A. Daley leaves tomorrow for New York to attend the convention of the National Chain Store Grocers' association, to be held at the Waldorf Astoria September 20 and 21. The association has a membership of thirty-five organizations, operating over 13,000 retail units and doing an annual business of close to a billion dollars.

Mr. Daley will be gone about six weeks and his trip will embrace practically a tour of the manufacturing centers of the United States and an inspection of the plants of all the national food manufacturers.

A London newspaper states that analyses of the prohibition violations in New York city showed 75 per cent of the violators to be foreign-born.

DE VALERA LEADING LITTLE ARMY IN SOUTH

Feeling Runs High Result of Collins' Assassination; Avengers Legion

BELFAST, Aug. 25.—Eamonn de Valera, commander-in-chief of the republican irregulars, has made a dramatic appearance at the head of a little army of rebels in County Louth, according to information received today from the border. At last reports De Valera was reported to be in southwestern Ireland and Louth was said to be free of rebels.

By DANIEL O'CONNELL

DUBLIN, Aug. 25.—While the body of Michael Collins rested in state in the city hall today, viewed by thousands, reports were received by the free state ministry of defense of many victories over the irregulars along the western battlefront.

Free state troops have captured Kinsale, Dungarvan and Dunmanway.

A detachment of free staters raided Limerick, capturing twenty irregulars. A number of machine guns, 7000 rounds of ammunition and other equipment were seized.

Many Lay Down Arms

Many irregulars in the Cork area, incensed by the killing of Michael Collins, are laying down their arms and are pledging their allegiance to the free state.

On the other hand, however, other irregulars are concentrating at Ballinhassig and are preparing to give battle to the free staters.

The forthcoming session of the Dail Eireann has been postponed until September 9.

The cabinet met and considered reorganization of the government as well as the future policy to be pursued towards the rebels. The suggestion made was that the irregulars be treated as "murderers and outlaws," but Richard Mulcahy, commander-in-chief of the free state army, advocated a continuation of "Collins' policy of leniency towards the rebels.

Attempt Lynchings

It was reported from the south that mobs attempted to lynch irregular prisoners who were suspected of having part in Collins' death.

There was keen public interest as to successors of Collins and Griffith. It is considered likely that their places will be permanently filled by Mulcahy and William T. Cosgrave, respectively, soldier and civil student.

The whereabouts of Eamonn de Valera are said to be known to the free state army chiefs, but it is unlikely that any precipitate action will be directed against him.

The city hall furnished the stage for scenes of deep tragic and dramatic quality. Past the plain coffin holding the body of Michael Collins, draped with the tricolor and guarded by six officers of Collins' staff, filed hundreds of men, women and children. Collins' body was attired in the uniform in which he met his death. The still hands clasped a rosary.

Outside in the street the Dublin Guards, the pet regiment of the dead commander-in-chief, were standing at attention. It was a common occurrence to see a man stop, raise his hand to heaven and solemnly swear to avenge Collins' death.

Reformer Approves 'Chaw' of Tobacco

HAMMOND, La.—Mrs. Thomas Forrest, reformer, is on the warpath again, seeking the scalps of some undeserving citizens who deal in cigarettes and other kindred evils.

As a prominent W. C. T. U. member she threw a fright into Hammond business men last year when she undertook to agitate against the sale of cigarettes to minors.

The W. C. T. U. backed her—for a time. Somehow or other, though, just as it seemed as if she were to see victory, the Union withdrew its support. Mrs. Forrest was defeated and, it is whispered, sale of cigarettes to minors continued.

Mrs. Forrest learned her lesson.

This year she has made a concession for the sake of the men. She continues to be opposed to cigarettes, corncob pipes, white mule and bootleggers.

But—she says it's all right for men to take a "chaw" of tobacco three times a day.

Down there they say her idea is clever.

[ASSOCIATE JUSTICE]

CURTIS D. WILBUR

FOR

CHIEF JUSTICE OF SUPREME COURT

JUDGE WILBUR'S organizing capacity has been tested out in the organization of the Juvenile Court, the securing of necessary legislation for the proper organization of that department, the establishment of the Referee system for the trial of girls' cases by a woman Referee, his work for three years as Presiding Judge of the Superior Court of Los Angeles and his helpful co-operation in the organization of that court.

The Primary Election is August 29, 1922, and will determine who is to be the next Chief Justice

BAN ON HEAVY TRUCKS

Heavy trucks may be definitely restricted to certain streets according to action started last night by the city council. City Manager W. H. Reeves was instructed to investigate the subject and report at a future session. Suitable regulations have been requested by the property owners living along Vine street which was recently resurfaced.

PROTESTS AVAIL AT COUNCIL MEET

Sycamore Canyon Road Work Stopped Because of Large Tax District

it is going to cost you who are in the district. Although these figures are not the final figures, they are the best figures after careful investigation and he advises us tonight that, if he has made any mistake, it is an overestimate."

According to the figures presented based in each case on 50-foot lots, those one block away from the improvement would be called upon to pay an assessment of $75; those two blocks away $50; those three blocks away $25; those four blocks away $15; and the remainder of the district $10 and less. The assessment in Verdugo Woodlands, from where most protests appeared, under this schedule would have been about $3 per lot. This was the cause of a number of verbal protests from leading citizens of the section.

W. L. Twining Talks

"We have never asked one cent from Glendale, or rather, we have asked several times but we never have gotten one cent," declared W. L. Twining, representative of the F. P. Newport company. "We have taken care of all our flood control work. Now you come up there and ask us to assist in the improvement of a road that starts at Verdugo Road and ends nowhere."

"I will say that what Mr. Twining says about the Verdugo Woodlands paying for what they have gotten is true," replied Councilman Stephenson.

"It is an axiom up there that we can get anything we want from the city of Glendale—as long as we will pay for it and add a little bonus to it," stated Attorney C. L. Chandler. "I own three acres up there. I do not mind an assessment of $45 if you pay in on a charitable basis but, if it is on the basis of benefit I object. I would rather give it to the Boy Scouts."

About this time Councilman Stephenson suggested that it might be equitable to eliminate Verdugo Woodlands from the assessment district. His motion was indorsed by Councilman C. E. Kimlin and Sam Davis. Councilman A. H. Lapham made no objection.

More Questions Asked

A number of pertinent questions were then fired at the council and City Engineer C. L. Hill was called upon to act in advisory capacity. It was explained that the improvement called for a 56-foot boulevard paved surfaced with five inches of Willhite paving which would not only act as a thoroughfare but as a storm drain as well. The cost is estimated at $52,800 per running mile. Of this amount between $250 and $300 per fifty foot lot is to be paid by the property fronting on the improvement.

When it it was inquired why it was necessary to install such a fine boulevard to take care of the situation, Councilman Stephenson replied that this was the recommendation of five engineers. He admitted that all engineers like all lawyers seldom agree and admitted that it probably would be possible to find another five engineers who would have an entirely different opinion.

Conclusion Is Reached

Cost of the entire improvement should be borne by the frontage according to the dominant argument of protest. Councilman Stephenson admitted that this action would be equitable in theory but confiscatory in practice. He said that the only way the improvement would be completed would be in the manner proposed. He called attention to the fact that the improvement of Sycamore Canyon road has been under contemplation by the city of Glendale for the past sixteen years and that unless some action is taken, it may be delayed another sixteen years.

After patiently listening to protests for an hour and a half, it occurred to the council that eliminating Verdugo Woodlands from the assessment district invalidated the entire ordinance. A short recess was called for the audience while the council went into secret session.

According to the decision announced a few minutes later, the present proceedings were abandoned and new ones ordered commenced to put the major cost of the improvement upon the property owners on Sycamore Canyon road.

Card Party Proves Success for Fund

The card party given last night at the home of Mrs. H. A. McPherson, 607 North Central avenue, for the benefit of the building fund of the Tuesday Afternoon club was a decided success.

There were ten tables of "500." High score was made by Mrs. Arthur Dibbern and Dr. Fay Stone, and low score by Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Montgomery. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

Mrs. McPherson was assisted as hostess by Mrs. Fred Deal, Mrs. A. M. Beamon, Mrs. J. H. Southard and Mrs. Wm. F. Nash.

HOSTESS GIVES SILVER TEA

Mrs. O. W. Esselman of 1721 Gardena avenue was hostess to the members of the Mothers' club, P. T. A., of the Acacia street school at a silver tea given at her home yesterday afternoon. Those present included Miss Mae Cornwell, Mrs. Wesley Bullis, Mrs. E. W. Evans, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. J. H. Tierney, Mrs. Hullman, Mrs. C. M. Sudlow, Mrs. C. E. Seger and Mrs. O. E. Ostrander and the hostess. An informal social afternoon was enjoyed and refreshments served.

CHINESE AIM BLOW AT JAP CONTROL OF COMMERCE

Foreigners In Business In China May Be Asked to State Nationality

PEKING, Aug. 25.—The Chinese chamber of commerce at Nanking has begun a movement for the registration of all companies in which Chinese and foreigners are co-operating, suggesting to the government at Peking that all Sino-foreign concerns be obliged to "state clearly and unmistakably their real nationality and standing, so as not to mislead the Chinese in their legitimate business relations with these companies."

This movement seems to be directed mainly at the Chinese Japanese companies, "there being no reason," says the report on the subject, "why the fact of Sino-Japanese co-operation in the development of Chinese industries should be hidden from the general public.

"There is no law in either China or Japan to forbid Chinese and Japanese co-operating in the promotion of any legitimate business," says the report, "though while there are scores of Sino-Japanese concerns in China, there are but few in Japan."

Government Explains

The case of the Lung Yen iron mine is the thing that brought forth this memorandum to the government.

"It is an open secret," the memorandum says, "that this mining corporation was organized in 1915 by Tsao Ju-lin (later expelled from the Peking government by the country-wide movement made by the students against him because of his pro-Japanese activities) with Chinese and Japanese capital. Lung Chung-yu, director-general of the corporation, has made strong denials of the presence of any Japanese capital in the business, but this is known to be untrue."

For this reason the memorialists to the government suggest that some regulations and rules should be put into effect by the central government, making it compulsory for all Sino-foreign concerns in China to state clearly and unmistakably their real nationality and standing, so as not to mislead business relations with them.

Asks Foreign Co-operation

On the other hand, it is suggested that for the sake of the honor of the foreign countries in the Far East the home governments of the foreigners in China should instruct their nationals to state clearly their position in case they co-operate with the Chinese in business enterprises.

The Chinese chamber of commerce in Wuchang, according to Chinese reports, has informed the government that because of the uncertain status of the newly-formed Sino-Italian bank, Lu Tsao-yuan, former civil governor of Hupeh province, who is the principal shareholder in this new institution, was unable to obtain the lease of a building in the British concession in Hankow. The British authorities were not satisfied with the status of the bank and refused admittance. This, it is felt, would have been avoided if some sort of registration system were in force.

Mrs. Van Slyke of New York Guest Here

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Topliff of 312 North Isabel street have as their guest their daughter, Mrs. Blanche Van Slyke of New York City. Mrs. Van Slyke has been conducting a Therapeutic institute in the eastern metropolis and came here for a rest and a visit with her relatives. She was a former resident of Pasadena for eight years and has been enjoying meeting her many friends here.

Mrs. Gordon Wheatley of Azusa and Mrs. H. V. Adams of Lomita, formerly of Glendale, are sisters of Mrs. Van Slyke. While visiting Mrs. Adams last week Mrs. Van Slyke was taken ill and is to undergo an operation at a Los Angeles hospital some time this week. She will join her husband in New York City some time in October.

Local Pennsylvanians to Picnic on Sept. 2

Plans were made last evening for a picnic outing for Glendale Pennsylvanians, September 2, in Echo park, Los Angeles. The executive committee of the Glendale Pennsylvania club met last night at the home of J. M. Fife at 517 North Jackson street to make arrangements for the affair.

Preliminary to the picnic the committee has asked that all Pennsylvanians living in Glendale, Eagle Rock and Burbank, who have not registered with the club, do so at the office of the president, Dr. F. M. Collier, 103-A North Brand boulevard, Suite 2.

TWO POLO COATS STOLEN

W. A. Brown of 711 North Isabel street has reported the theft of two polo coats belonging to feminine members of his family, last night while his car was parked on the west side of Isabel street just south of Broadway. Mr. Brown was attending the session of the city council.
